Water Quality Tour Looks At Four Berks County Farms

NORTHWESTERN BERKS CO. — Sound conservation practices can't be put into place overnight. They are found on cooperator farms that make long-term commitments.

Some of the finest programs used on farms were illustrated all day Wednesday to about 30 who participated in a multi-farm water quality tour conducted in the northwest tier of Berks County.

Farmers, extension agents, agri-industry representatives, educators, and students were on hand to see various technologically sound ground- and water-saving techniques on farms in Womelsdorf, Mt. Aetna, and Bethel.

What they discovered, according to Mena Hautau, Berks County extension agent, is how well the practices "illustrate the commitment over time," she said. "These things don't happen overnight." According to producers on the tour, the investments are worth it because they save soil, improve the quality of water, and boost the quality of life for farmers and non-farmers.

Pennsylvania Farm Bureau Reverses PMMB Policy, Honors Achievements

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Farm Bureau held its 46th annual meeting and convention this week at the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center in Hershey.

In addition to offering seminars on topics ranging from retirement planning to promotion strategies, the Farm Bureau presented awards to outstanding members and its 170 voting delegates set policy.

The PFB offers members services such as insurance, business management consulting and retirement and estate planning. However, the strength of the organization is its clout with setting agricultural policy.

All during the convention delegates debated a wide range of issues until taking a final vote on policy on Thursday.

Among new policy set, of interest to dairy producers is the reversal of the PFB's policy with regard to the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board's authority to set minimum retail prices.

Last year, PFB member-delegates had voted to adopt a policy calling for the elimination of the PMMB's authority to set minimum milk prices.

More recently, during a hearing held in Lower Merion Township on a legislative proposal to eliminate the PMMB's authority, those opposed to the PMMB cited the

Farmers Union Inducts Two Into Hall Of Fame

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania Farmers Union honored two longtime members at its 25th annual convention held at the Holiday Inn in Harrisburg.

Jack Rynd of Crawford County and Albert Bentz of York County were inducted into the Hall of Fame.

"I am honored to present these two men with this award," said Pennsylvania Farmers Union President Bob Junk. "Jack and Albert truly are the foundation of our organization and the backbone of rural Pennsylvania."

The PFU Hall of Fame was

Farm-City Events Create Forum For Friendships

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — With the signing of a proclamation, state Gov. Tom Ridge has officially signalled Pennsylvania's observance of national Farm-City Week as Nov. 22-28.

Of course, farm-city events occur throughout the year, not just during the annual week of observation, which always ends on Thanksgiving Day.

Some counties hold their events during the summer, while others schedule events closer to, but not during the official Farm-City Week.

Berks County held its Farm-City banquet two weeks ago. Lebanon County has its event scheduled for Dec. 11 at the Lebanon Area Fairgrounds Exposition building.

Lancaster County is to conduct its annual Ag-Industry Banquet, which doesn't get featured explicitly as a farm-city event, though it is.

There are many more "farm-city" events held than get widely publicized.

In some cases the lack of proper publicity for the event is because of too-late, last-minute planning; failures to establish program continuity; or a lack of communication skills and creativity.

In some counties, the local chamber of commerce takes on the responsibility for organizing a specific farm-city event.

In other counties, the local farm bureau organization takes charge. And in some other counties, other organizations, such as the USDA's Farm Service Agency, have accepted planning and coordinating responsibilities.

ADC Considers Expanding Alliance With Land O'Lakes

LOU ANN GOOD

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Injected among annual reports, awards, and resolutions, Atlantic Dairy Cooperative (ADC) announced it is pursuing the possibility of further uniting with Land O'Lakes (LOL) to make business more profitable.

Whether this alliance means something as major as merging or simply expanding butter manufacturing has not yet been determined.

"Before any decision is made about any type of relationship with LOL, we will come back to you—the members," said Robert Dever, chief executive officer for ADC.

Dever explained the ongoing talks with Land O'Lakes at the Cooperative's annual two-day meeting held for its 3,600 dairy farm members this week at the Lancaster Host.

The two cooperatives have been business partners since 1980 when Atlantic began producing butter at its Holly Milk facility for Land O'Lakes.

With headquarters in Minnesota, but with operations that extend to California and the Northwest part of the U.S., LOL is the largest butter marketer in the U.S. and has substantial cheese manufacturing facilities and national cheese distribution.

In addition to discussing cheese and butter manufacturing, Dever said, "We have discussed how their ag service sector and their feed, seed, and agronomy business could benefit ADC members. Last,

Delmarva Broiler

NOVEMBER 20, 1996

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was seasonally light as buyers interest shifted to other items for the Thanksgiving holiday. Offerings were fully adequate to ample. Live supplies here at least moderate; weights were mostly desirable. Processing schedules were moderately heavy. Less than truckIot asking prices were unchanged at 61 to 75 cents. Trade sentiment was steady at best. In the parts complex, wings continued to clear well. All other items were at least adequate and inventories were building.

National Grain Market

ST. JOSEPH, MO
NOVEMBER 20, 1996

Grain and soybean bids finished higher, today, as export demand improved for all commodities and fund buying on the board offered support. Wheat 5 to 19 cents higher. Corn 4 to 6 cents higher. Sorghum 8 to 12 cents higher. Soybeans 6 to 12 cents higher. Wheat bids jumped higher again, supported by good overnight export interest and fund buying. The strength in Dec/Mar spreads in both Chicago and Kansas City was also a positive factor. Corn and soybean bids moved sharply higher on improved export sales and increased farmer selling. Fund buying on the board added some support to bids and Midwest weather forecasts are now calling for some moisture and cold weather over the next few days. National Grain Market

NOVEMBER 20, 1996

Prices to retailers were unchanged to higher in the Northeast, Midwest and Virginia, elsewhere, prices were unchanged. The market tone was fully steady to firm. Demand remained seasonally active and ranged moderate to very good, mostly good. Supplies were short to adequate with the large sizes still in the tightest position. Breaking stock supplies were no more than adequate for the good demand, and prices were higher. Light type hen offerings were limited, and plants continued to run reduced schedules.

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

NOV. 25-DEC. 1, 1996

FIRST SUNDAY IN ADVENT, DEC. 1.

THANKFUL FOR MORE SHOPPING?

Did you know that Thanksgiving was once moved to create more shopping days before Christmas? It's true! In 1939, President Franklin D. Roosevelt changed Thanksgiving to the third Thursday in November to give the economy a boost. In 1941, the president returned Thanksgiving to the fourth Thursday. If you're kicking off the season with a shopping trip, our consumer trend watchers say popular items for the next year will include bamboo flatwear, frames, and furnishings; khaki clothing, herb gardens, and cheesecakes. Hawaiian shirts, clunky footwear, velvets, suedes, and chenille fabrics are also in

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Bring your recycled shopping bags with you on shopping sprees, to reduce waste.

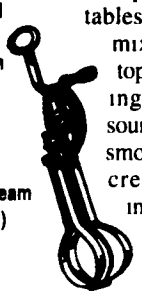
6-HOUR CHEESECAKE

Crust & Topping:
1-1/3 cups fine graham cracker crumbs
1/4 cup finely chopped walnuts
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 cup melted butter

Filling:
2 eggs, well-beaten
16 ounces softened cream cheese (not whipped)
1 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 teaspoon almond extract
2 cups sour cream



Mix crust ingredients and press into a 9-inch pie pan, reserving 3 tablespoons of the crumb mixture to sprinkle on top. Combine all filling ingredients except the sour cream, beating until smooth. Fold in the sour cream by hand. Pour into the crust. Sprinkle with topping. Bake at 375° F until set, about 35 minutes. Cool and chill about 4 to 5 hours.

Makes 8 to 10 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

If it rains the first Sunday of December, it will rain for a week.

If the breastbone of the Thanksgiving fowl turns red, blue, black, purple, or has dark spots, it means a cold and stormy winter. If purple tips to the bone, it's a sure sign of a cold spring.

OK City Feeder Cattle

OKLAHOMA CITY, OK
NOVEMBER 20, 1996

Compared to last Monday: Feeder steers and heifers steady. Steer and heifer calves steady to 2.00 lower. Demand moderate for all classes. OPINION

The Farmer As A Public Relations Specialist

Most farmers don't think of themselves as public relations specialists. And yet one of the greatest needs in our society is to have the good news of agriculture communicated to the general public.

Farm-City Week, November 22-28, is a good time to think about how you can improve relations with your city and urban neighbors. Not only are we dependent upon the people in our communities to buy our products, they provide a variety of important services. Of course, we provide an abundant food supply that takes just 11.4 percent of an average family's income. In addition, 20 percent of all jobs are dependent on agriculture's base in the economy.

The National Farm-City Week originated in 1955. Since then, farm-city programs have expanded to more than 15,000 communities nationwide. Many farm-city councils work throughout the year to strengthen understanding and communication between consumers and producers with activities such as job exchanges, banquets, farm and business tours, poster and photography contests, youth and family exchanges, career days, or commodity festivals.

But the most important event in farm-urban relations comes from individual farmers. Get to know your neighbors. It is easier to talk to people you know if a problem occurs. Wave as you drive by.

Call and alert neighbors not to hang out laundry on days you spread manure. Your own bath towels don't smell very good if they have dried on the line downwind from your own manure spreading operation. Think of what it would be like if this happened and you were not accustomed to the farm smells.

Ask neighbors if they have picnics coming up or other special events that would be disrupted if you spread manure or spray. Treat people the way you want to be treated.

Today, one farmer produces enough food and fiber for 129 people. In Pennsylvania, along with the food processors, farming annually creates $3.74 billion in cash receipts and $40 billion in related economic activity. But these fantastic statistics don't mean a hill of beans if your neighbor hates your farming operation.

So do a little public relations work during Farm-City Week. You may find this work enjoyable.

Now Is The Time

By John Schwartz

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Celebrate Farm-City Week

November 22-28 is National Farm-City Week.

This is the week we recognize the importance of both farms and cities. Without farms, cities would have no food. Without cities or towns, farmers would have no markets or producers of equipment and supplies needed in agricultural production.

The link between our farmers and urban dwellers is vital to economic opportunity and economic progress throughout the state. Urban and rural residents need to work together to ensure a better quality of life for future generations.

As suburbs continue to grow and replace farmland, there is sometimes a lack of effective communication between rural and urban neighbors.

This would be a good week to stop and visit your neighbors. Stop and talk to them. Take them a gift of your farm production and thank them for being a good neighbor.

A small act of kindness goes a long way in building a good relationship.

To Know Some Statistics

Pennsylvania has the largest rural population of any state in the nation, along with some of the most productive farms and industries.

She has 51,000 farm families and 2,300 food processing companies. This places her among the top five states nationally in the production of eggs, milk, cheese, ice cream, butter, mushrooms, potato chips, grapes, tart cherries, trout, apples, pears, and Christmas trees.

With $3.73 billion in annual cash receipts, Pennsylvania's agriculture generates an additional $40 billion in related economic activity each year. It also creates jobs for 20 percent of our residents.

Agricultural exports are valued at $431 million annually. With 12 million people, Pennsylvania ranks fifth nationally in population.

The highway system is the fourth largest in the nation. There are 43,000 miles of state highways, 115,000 miles of secondary highways, and 1,567 miles of interstate highways. Our rail system includes more than 60 railroads and 6,000 miles of railways.

With more than 800 airports and six international airports, Pennsylvania ranks fourth in the number of airports nationwide and landing facilities per square mile.

This infrastructure makes it possible for Pennsylvania farmers to market their products to a large segment of the United States, Canada's, and world's population.

To Protect Venison Quality

Pennsylvania deer season begins soon.

According to Robert Anderson, Lancaster County extension agent, the deer hunter needs to remember that venison quality depends on how it is handled.

Preserving carcass quality begins with the right tools and an understanding of what to do after the deer is bagged.

The best quality venison is obtained with proper field dressing. Excessive blood, the digestive tract, and other internal organs should be removed immediately. The body cavity should then be washed with clean water as soon as possible. Any organs being kept should also be washed thoroughly.

Cool the carcass as quickly as possible. Avoid transporting the carcass on the hood of a vehicle where it will warm up. During warm weather, keeping the carcass cool is critical in avoiding meat spoilage.

Feather Prof.'s Footnote: "We make a living by what we get. We make a life by what we give."

Re: Opinion column Nov. 9, 1996.

Yes, $10 to $20 for a 100 lb. veal calf is not very much. But what is there? As I see it, just a pile of slime! Many umbilical cords are still wet-looking as the calf goes through the auction ring. Is it any wonder the consumer is turned off? I sure am! Re: your last sentence.

When I was growing up on a small farm some 55 years ago, our calves were milk fed (not milk-replacer) for six weeks and would weight out in the range of 190 to 225 pounds.

Can't you just imagine the nice veal steaks from such an animal versus the present day ground up slime mixed with whatever filler, so called veal cutlet?

Can it be said today that a calf is just a necessay evil in order to pro-

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE SOUND OF DRY BONES
November 24, 1996

Background Scripture:
Ezekiel 37
Devotional Reading:
Hosea 14:1-9

Have you ever known true despair — even if just momentarily? Have you ever concluded that there was no solution to your problem, no way out of your desperate situation?

If you haven't, I salute you. And maybe even envy you — unless it means that your time is still to come! Few of us escape completely the experience of despair and hopelessness. I am much more an optimist than a pessimist, but there have been times in the dark night of the soul when I have wondered if morning light would even return. In those moments I could say with the exiled people of Judah, "Our bones are dried up, and our hope lost; we are clean cut off" (37:11).

The visionary Valley of the Dry Bones which the Spirit of the Lord shows Ezekiel was quite possibly an actual valley wherein the people of Judah fought the Babylonians and lost, not only the battle, but the kingdom as well. Either literally or figuratively it was a valley strewn with the sun-dried bones of the losers. Actually or symbolically, it was the graveyard of Judah's hopes. A valley of wounded soldiers might still give some hope, but a valley of dry bones holds no promise.

THE GRAVE OF HOPES

E.L. Allen, writing an exposition on this chapter, asks: "Who among us has not stood at some time or other by the grave of his hopes?" The grave of our hopes may be a home destroyed by natural disaster or a brokenness of human relationships. I may be a career which has come to an abrupt, apparent end or a physical condition that promises only disability and perhaps even death. Or it may be a deep feeling that the very stuff of human vitality has dried up within us and we can no longer meet life's demands.

Sometimes we despair because we wrongly interpret our situation. We may jump to the mistaken conclusion that "All is lost!" when it is not. We may misinterpret the severity of our danger or the resilience of our resources. But there are times when our despair is justified because we have nothing left with which to struggle but the skeletons of our failures and vicissitudes.

This was the situation that faced the people of Judah. Any realist, even the most optimistic of the lot, would have to agree that there was nothing for which they could hope. Judah and her jewel in the crown, Jerusalem, was a stone-cold memory, nothing more — at least from a very human point of view. This is what Ezekiel saw in the valley, nothing but dry bones! And the writer tells us "and lo, they were very dry" (37:3).

CAN THESE BONES LIVE?

I would like to know what Ezekiel thought and felt when God asked this ominous question: "Son of man, can these bones live?" He knew that there was no way humanly possible for these bones to live again. Yet, he also knew the Lord and must have wondered whether God was going to do something spectacular. His answer is guarded and open-ended, "O Lord God, thou knowest."

His answer of possibility is just enough an opening of the door through which God can accomplish his mighty act. It appears that this is something in which he needs Ezekiel's compliance. "Prophesy to these bones, and say to them, O dry bones, hear the word of the Lord" (37:5). The prophet is no mere spectator to the miracle of rebirth, but the agent through which it takes place. So long as there is a prophet willing to speak for God and dry bones ready to listen, there is nothing for God which is impossible. "So I prophesied as I was commanded; and as I prophesied, there was a noise . . ." — the sound of the dry bones taking on sinew and flesh and finally breath, a whole people rising up from the grave.

When we obey God's command, the spirit breathes into us a miraculous new life and breath and those dry bones can live again. That and that only is the ground of our hope.

but least, we have talked about structural issues and how these two businesses can go forward together, either formally or informally."

With Class I sales remaining stagnant but cheese sales and consumption increasing, Dever said that cheese and value added products offer the best potential for profit.

LOL offers the possibility of increased profits because of its already established markets in Poland and Bulgaria and plans to distribute dairy products throughout the world.

ADC is attractive to LOL because the largest segment of the U.S. population resides on the East Coast and the largest parts of its cheese and butter business is here. This would enable LOL to more efficiently transport its product.

Dever promised that two facts are non-negotiable. "Anything that we do or agree to do has to provide both a short and long-term economic benefit to the ADC members, and the philosophy that the organization is here to benefit the members and only the members must be continued.

During the business session, ADC reported sales of $605 million and a net margin of $5.8 million for the the 1996 fiscal year. Although $5.8 million is a 25 percent return on invested capital, the board elected to reinvest that money into the manufacturing operation instead of sending a thirteenth check.

In other business, the Outstanding Young Cooperators Kenneth and Denise Sanner were introduced. The Sanners operate a 390-acre, 173-head Holstein farm near Kutztown. The Sanners and first runner-up couple David and Beth Hill, who operate a 1,710 acre, 261-Holstein farm near Kennedyville, Md., will attend the National Milk Producers Federation meeting held in California the first week of December. The purpose of the young cooperative program is to educate young members and develop leadership skills.

Fran Howard, editor-in-chief of "Dairy Profit Weekly," received ADC's Agricultural Communicator Award on Friday. Howard is co-owner and president of DPW Publishing Inc., and reports on dairy industry issues, from milk marketing and pricing to legislation.

The theme during the two-day meeting was A Platform for Progress. The Thursday night banquet featured motivational speaker Jeanne Robertson, the Miss Congeniality winner in the Miss America Contest in 1963.

Thomas Suber of the U.S. Dairy Export Council addressed the Thursday afternoon session.

Atlantic, based in Southampton, is a 3,600-member dairy cooperative that markets and processes milk in the Middle Atlantic region.

Bedford County DHIA Presents Awards

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co.
Correspondent

IMLER (Bedford Co.) — Bedford County Dairy Herd Improvement Association held its annual awards banquet recently at the Imler Fire Hall, in Imler.

County Extension Agent Susan Fox presented awards.

Walking off with top honors for its herd management was Hidden Fox Farm, of Martinsburg, with a 50-cow herd.

The Steve and Jeri Ritchey farm, also in Martinsburg, was the second-place winner of the annual management award, which is based on a point system that includes, milk production, mastitis management and reproductive management.

The two farms also received the county's top two awards for highest average milk and protein production.

The Ritchey herd averagted 23,896 pounds of milk, and 774 pounds protein; while the Hidden Fox herd made an average of 23,425 pounds of milk, 740 pounds of protein.

Recognized as the most improved in milk production, Rod and Cathy Carson, of Martinsburg, were honored for having an average increase in milk production of 1,771 pounds.

Their 50-cow herd's year-end average production was 21,025 pounds of milk.

Hidden Fox was named the second most improved herd, with an average milk increase of 1,478 pounds of milk.

As far as individual cow production, Meadow Creek Farm in Bedford was cited for having the most milk-producing cow, a 4-year-old; while Marlin Heisey, of Osterburg, had the second highest milk-producing cow.

The highest protein producing cow was also a 4-year-old, owned by Jack E. Colledge, of Everett, with 1,042 pounds, while the second highest protein producing cow was from Meadow Creek Farm, with 1,010 pounds protein.

In other business, Chris Kidd, of Everett, was elected for the first time to the county board of directors, while Joe Garman was re-elected to a position on the board.

Also speaking during the event was Dick Ferry, a former artificial insemination technician from New Enterprise.

From the left, Chris Kidd is elected to the Bedford County DHIA board of directors, and stands with county Dairy Princess Becky Carson, and banquet speaker Dick Ferry.

Pennsylvania Farm Bureau Honors Achievements

PFB policy as a major reason to eliminate the minimum retail price-setting authority.

The argument was that the state's largest farmer organization was opposed to the authority of the PMMB, therefore it was time to eliminate it.

Dairy producer members of PFB at the hearing said that the policy didn't reflect the desires of the farm organization's dairy producers and predicted the reversal.

Further, it was stated that while the PFB has maintained otherwise constant support for the PMMB's minimum price-setting powers, years ago the PFB had actually adopted a one-year policy stance against the PMMB's authority. That was reversed the following year, as was the case this week.

Philadelphia-area politicians have to deal with a constituency that differs in many ways from the rest of the state. However, the School District of Philadelphia has been one of the strongest decriers of the PMMB.

The school district has attempted to have the PMMB authority eliminated through legal challenge, though a recent challenge failed.

Some claim the district was disingenuous because after it complained about possibly paying 5 cents more per half-pint of milk than a nearby unregulated New Jersey school district, and the PMMB lowered the region's minimum price by a couple cents per half pint based on all testimony (cost of production and hauling and ability to pay are also used to determined fairness of price), the school district never passed the savings onto the school children.

Nevertheless, the change in policy reverts the PFB to its former and long-standing position in support of the PMMB.

The PFB sets policy at the county level. County policies are forwarded to the state committee for condensation and to eliminate redundancy. Then, at the state convention, delegates debate the policies before settling down to a final vote.

Other policy highlights of the 46th meeting included a recommendation that federal milk marketing orders and all unregulated counties in the Northeastern states be combined into one new Northeastern federal milk marketing order.

The 1996 U.S. Farm Bill calls for such a combining of federal orders.

The delegate body adopted policy opposing efforts by the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation to take over the operation and maintenance of the Pennsylvania Turnpike.

Interim policy — that which is set by the organization's board of directors between annual conventions — that called for increasing state spending for bridge and road repairs and that those additional funds be actually used for repairs and are shared with local governments was affirmed by the delegates and is now official policy.

In awards presentations, the organization also announced its outstanding young farmer couple. Duane and Marilyn Hershey, of Cochranville, were named winners.

The award is presented annually to a farmer or farm couple between the ages of 18 and 35, who have demonstrated exemplary farm business and leadership achievements.

There were three finalist couples competing for the award. The other two couples were Chris and Sandy Pilgram, of Fredonia, and Nelson and Marilyn Beam, of Elverson. All three finalist couples received a $100 savings bond.

As the winners, the Hersheys also received a $500 cash award from Dodge Truck and an expense-paid trip to the National Farm Bureau annual meeting, to be held in January in Nashville.

The Hersheys oeprate a 350-acre dairy farm in Chester County and milk 75 registered Holsteins. They also have won the Chesapeake Bay Clean Water Award for their conservation practices, and have improved their dairy operation with additional stalls, cow mattresses, a totally mixed ration, and tunnel ventilation.

Duane is currently vice president of the Chester/Delaware County Farm Buruea board of directors and he also serves on the local board for Atlantic Dairy Cooperative.

The Hersheys have participated in the Holstein Foundation's Young Dairy Leadership program, and in 1994, Dauen and his father, state Rep. Art Hershey, received the Pennsylvania Master Farmer Award.

The outstanding farmer award was made during the President's Luncheon.

During the luncheon, PFB President Guy Donaldson told the group that during the past year the organization set a record for membership, signing a total of 26,625 members during the year, which represented a one-year membership increase of 750 members.

Donaldson said that the organization must continue to keep its goals high and said he predicted that the coming year will also see a record number of new members, with a possible membership of 30,000 by 2000.

The theme for this year's convention was, "PFB: Solving Your Problems."

Donaldson said that solving problems through setting policy from the local level first and then acting as one voice was the greatest strength of the organization.

"Many of our policies have become law," he said, adding that delegates must be careful to debate issues fully and to treat policy setting with the respect it deserves.

He said that if they don't do so, members may find themselves with what they have asked. And they might not like it.

"Many, many laws have been adopted, reviewed or discontinued as a result of our (policy making) system," he said.

Donaldson reviewed a lengthy list of current laws that benefit agriculture and production farmers and rural Pennsylvanians that were first reflected in PFB policy.

He said that while the PFB is not alone, or in some cases, not even most responsible for achieving that policy into law, it was PFB policy and that helps achieve more widely accepted policy.

Donaldson also said that change is inevitable, but that members need not fear change. Rather they must be prepared for that change when it comes. Debating policy at the local level helps keep members prepared for change.

Voting Delegates also elected two new members and returned six others to the PFB State Board of Directors. Two-year terms had expired in eight of the 16 districts represented on the State Board. Newly elected to the Board are: Jane Balmer of Mt. Joy, a dairy and poultry farmer, who has served as president of the Lancaster County Farm Bureau for the past six years; and Rick Ebert of Blairsville, a dairy farmer, who served on Farm Bureau state and national Young Farmer and Rancher Committees and is a past president of the Westmoreland County Farm Bureau.

Re-elected to the State Board are: Clarence Berger of Kintnersville, Bucks County; Kent Shellhamer, Jr. of Berwick, Columbia County; Donn Fetterolf of Aaronsburg, Centre County; Wayne Freeman of Elliottsburg, Perry County; Jerome Carl of Dysart, Cambria County and Harold Curtis of Columbus, Warren County.

Martha Rhoades of Emlenton, Clarion County, became the first woman to receive the organization's "Distinguished Service to Agriculture Award." Mrs. Rhoades was cited for her dedication and commitment to agriculture and Farm Bureau.

Martha Rhoades served on Pennsylvania Farm Bureau's board of directors representing the Armstrong, Clarion, Elk and Jefferson county farm bureaus from 1981 to 1989. After leaving the state board she became involved in the PFB state women's committee and served as its chairperson from 1989 until she retired from the committee last year. As committee chairperson she also held a seat on the PFB state board of directors.

Marth and her husband Richard Rhoades have been farming in Clarion County for 53 years. They operate a 1,000-acre dairy and crop farm with 195 cows. Martha became active in the Clarion County Farm Bureau during the 1970's. She served in several leadership positions including county secretary, information director, newsletter editor, Agriculture in the Classroom coordinator, members committee chairperson, county board member, national legislative committee member, AG Literacy coordinator, and Friends of Agriculture committee member. She and her husband are also members of a Farm Bureau advisory council.

"Martha is always positive and possesses a can-do attitude," said PFB President Guy Donaldson in presenting the award. "She is a shining example of the strength and dedication of our volunteer leaders."

The Berks County Farm Bureau was named PFB's "All Star" County for the sixth consecutive year. The award is PFB's most prestigious program award, recognizing excellence in all Farm Bureau program categories. The presentations took place during the annual member recognition Banquet, Tuesday evening.

County president Edward Hartman of Reading accepted the PFB "All Star" award on behalf of the county farm bureau's 1,540 members. In addition to the award for excellence in all programs, Berks County received individual awards for outstanding Political Education and Contract Services programs. Other county farm bureaus were also honored for best overall programs during the banquet. Clinton County took top honors for county farm bureaus with up to 350 members; Susquehanna County was recognized in the 351 to 500 member category; and Lehigh County received the second place award for counties with over 500 members. Berks took first place in that category in addition to the All Star award.

The winner of the 1996 Discussion Meet sponsored by PFB's Young Farmers and Ranchers Committee was also announced during the recognition banquet. Eight young farmers competed earlier in the day in the Farm Bureau program which is designed to develop cooperative problem-solving skills through the discussion of pre-selected topics. A panel of judges selected John Pergosky of New Tripoli, Lehigh County as the Discussion Meet winner. Pergosky will receive an expense paid trip to Nashville to compete for national honors during American Farm Bureau's convention in January. In addition, Chrysler Corporation presented him with a check for $500.

The strength of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau is its grass-roots policy making system. Here the PFB's 170 voting delegates present locally developed polices for debate and consideration as state policy. Delegate debate is ongoing for most of the convention, culminating in final policy being set the last day.

Seated, Marilyn and Duane Hershey hold their outstanding farm couple award, and are joined by, from the left, standing, Brian Dietrich, chairperson of the award committee, and the two other finalist couples, Nelson and Marilyn Beam, and Sandy and Chris Pilgram.

Among some of the featured speakers during the three-day convention, Dr. George Conneman, an economist with Cornell University, gave members a synopsis of the challenges and opportunities he forsees in the year 2010, and beyond.

"The only thing certain about the future is change," he said.

Change isn't new. Tremendous change has always been a part of farming through the transitions from using hand power to horse, and to mechanical powers. Recent surges in scientific information and biotechnology increases the productivity available to farmers.

With humor and energy, Conneman spoke of the trends in technology that he foresees affecting farming. Some of these included the following:

- Biotechnology and genetic engineering will continue to imporove agricultural production.
- Nutrition, diet, and health concerns will see a shift away from red meats to fresh fruits, vegetables, fiber, and complex carbohydrates.
- Global competitiveness will result from unrestricted trade.
- Niche marketing by farmers will increase. Marketing for the kosher and organic markets will result in value-added products.

"Free-range chickens may not be important to you, but it is to some," Conneman said of the niche marketing possibilities that will increase.

While some economists predict that small farms will not be able to survive into the next century, Conneman disagrees.

"Farming will always be a way of life for those who treat it as a business," he said.

Management will allow small farms to remain competitive if decisions are based on fact and not made haphazardly. Conneman said, "Don't cut corners just to cut corners."

He illustrated the danger of corner cutting by snipping the corners off a paper bag. Corners were cut but the bag became useless. He emphasized the need to plan ahead and the importance of looking for hidden costs.

Although Conneman believes small farms can remain viable, there will be a shift to mega farms. He also forsees a shift of farming to better land resources.

"Those with poorer soils will go out of business," he said.

The biggest detriment to small-scale farming will be "getting away," Conneman said.

Problems facing larger farm operation will vary depending on the size. Environmental concerns and human resource management increases the larger a farm becomes.

Conneman advised farmers who want to stay in business to accept technology and apply information for decision making, to abide by sound financing principles, control costs, and develop people skills.

He reminded the audience that the general concensus in the 1950s was that it was impossible for anyone to get started in farming unless they were part of a family operation.

Conneman doesn't perceive a problem of farmers not being able to produce enough food for the world. "The problem is that people won't have enough money to buy it."

He ended with a quote from Thomas Jefferson, "This time like all times is a very good time, if we know what to do with it."

Cooperative Agreement Gives Maryland Vet Pathologist

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Lewis R. Riley has announced that the Maryland Department of Agriculture (MDA) and the Virginia-Maryland Regional College of Veterinary Medicine (VMRCVM) have signed a cooperative agreement to jointly fund a position for an anatomical pathologist.

The individual who fills this position will divide their time between MDA's Frederick Animal Health Laboratory and the VMRCVM's Marion duPont Scott Equine Medical Center in Leesburg, Va.

"This cooperative agreement is another example of how those of us in agriculture are working together with universities and across state lines to provide essential services to the agriculture industry. In times of budgetary restraints, it is more important than ever to seek innovative ways to increase our effectiveness in support of agriculture. I applaud the Virginia-Maryland Regional College of Veterinary Medicine for jointing forces with us to protect animal and public health in our region," Riley said.

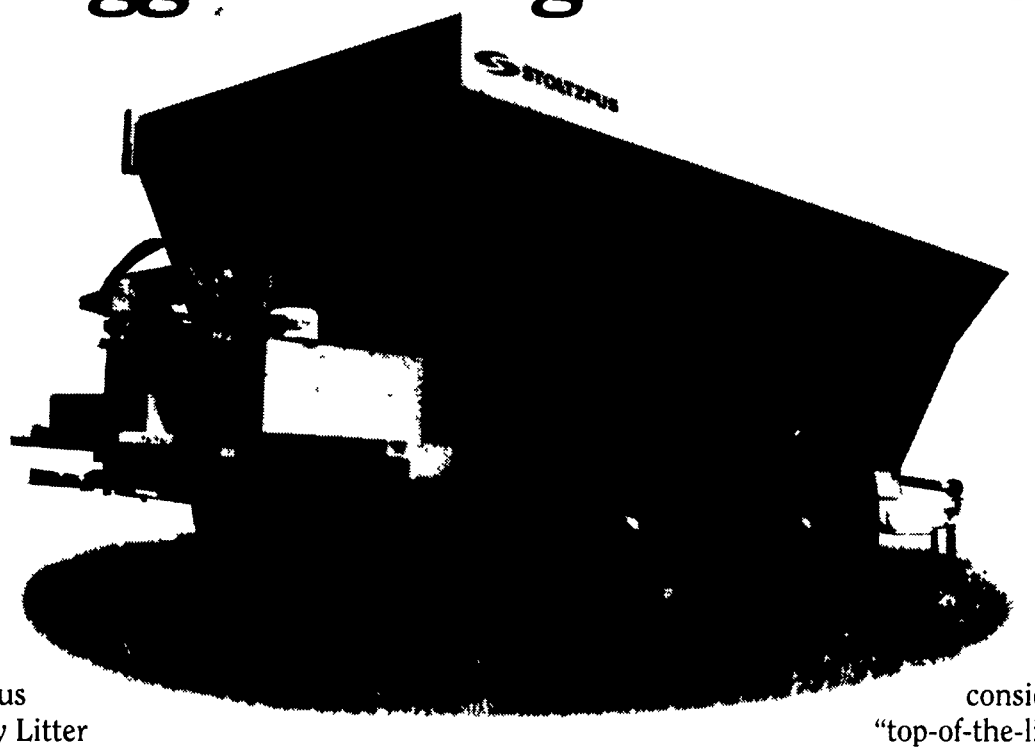
Under terms of the cooperative agreement, an anatomical pathologist will be hired immediately and will participate in the clincial instruction of fourth year veterinary students, research, and the coordination of gross anatomical exams (necropsy) of various animal species carcasses.

Dr. Peter Eyre, dean of the Virginia-Maryland Regional College of Veterinary Medicine, and Secretary Riley formally signed the cooperative agreement at a brief ceremony at the Maryland Department of Agriculture. Both men agreed that this venture would strengthen the bond between MDA and VMRCVM, including the Avrum Gudelsky Veterinarian Center at the University of Maryland at College Park.

"I believe that his cooperative agreement will be a precedent for other larger joint ventures," Riley said.

For more information on the cooperative agreement for joint funding for an anatomical pathologist, contact Dr. Roger E. Olson, State Veterinarian, Maryland Department of Agriculture, (410) 841-5810.

The One Spreader Big Enough For Poultry Litter, Rugged Enough For Lime.



The Stoltzfus Poultry Litter Spreader is specifically designed for the demands of this challenging job. The 20 foot hopper holds a whopping 400 cubic foot load, meaning fewer trips for you. The big 30-inch drag chain moves large volumes of litter fast. And the dual hydraulic spinners spread a wide, uniform pattern up to 40 feet wide.

But its real beauty may be its versatility. Now you can spread fertilizer, stockpiled lime, compost,poultry litter and more, all with one machine.

Long considered "top-of-the-line" ag spreaders, many Stoltzfus Spreaders are still in use after 20 years. That makes a Stoltzfus Spreader preferred not only for quality and performance, but also for terrific economy in the long run.

Sure you can settle for buying on initial price alone. But with a Stoltzfus Spreader you won't be shopping for another spreader just a couple years down the line.

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — Recently, champions of the Adams County 4-H Beef show and sale were named.

The steer was purchased by Hoss's Steak and Sea House for $2.70 per pound. The steer was resold to benefit Adams County 4-H Beef Club activities. Steve Waybrant, representing J.F. Waybrant, purchased Bert Martin's champion steer for $1.10 per pound.

Ashley Stine, East Berlin, showed the reserve grand champion steer. The steer was purchased by Donald Stine for $1.50 per pound.

Reserve champion fitter/showman awards were presented to Chris Seymore, senior division reserve champion; Melissa Jeffcoat, intermediate division reserve champion; and Stacey Kibler, junior division reserve champion.

The champion steer was resold to benefit Adams County 4-H Beef Club activities. Steve Waybrant, representing J.F. Waybrant, purchased Bert Martin's champion steer for $1.10 per pound.

Conservation District Presents Annual Awards

ALLENTOWN (Lehigh Co.) — The Lehigh County Conservation District presented its annual awards at a dinner held on Oct. 12 at St. Joseph's Parish Center in Limeport.

The occasion also celebrated the 50th Anniversary of the formation of the conservation district by vote of the Lehigh County Commissioners on Sept. 26, 1946. This vote was in response to numerous petitions by Lehigh County farmers and landowners who desired to conserve their soil and water.

Rena Garrity of Slatington was honored as "Conservation Educator of the Year." A teacher at Mosser Elementary School on Allentown's East Side, Garrity was selected for her efforts to incorporate environmental education into all aspects of the curriculum.

She was also recognized for her efforts with the Mosser Woods Project, in which 20 acres of woodlands adjacent to the school are being developed into an environmental education laboratory. She has been highly instrumental in involving the students in the clearing and planting and the neighbors in cleaning up the woods.

Through her efforts, the school has received assistance from various government agencies and private industry in developing trails and a pond and wetlands area. She also initiated the idea of a Mosser School Envirothon, an event patterned on the environmental competition for high school students co-hosted by the conservation district and the Wilklands Conservancy.

Hubert and Grace Sell, owners of Crystal Spring Farm in North Whitehall Township, were honored as "Conservation Farmers of the Year." They were selected not only for their use of soil and water conservation practices on their 300 acres of owned and rented land, but also for their efforts to manage manure and other nutrients.

Located in a rapidly developing area, the Sells know the challenge of being good stewards and neighbors while operating a successful dairy farm and the county's only milk jugging operatiion.

They are utilizing the Whole Farm Management concept, in which they consider the farm's total resources as well as their management goals. In this plan, items such as nutrient management and soil conservation merge together instead of possibly conflicting with each other.

The Sells have installed 200 feet of streambank fencing, put in protected crossings, and three livestock watering troughs. This will keep the cows out of Coplay Creek, which flows through the farm.

A cooperator with the Conservation District since 1967, Crystal Spring was also recognized for serving as a host farm for the District's Kids to Farms program, whereby inner city school students from Allentown visit farms to learn about agricultural production.

In celebrating the Lehigh County Conservation District's 50th anniversary, Congressman Paul McHale presented a form the U.S. Congress citing the District's accomplishments over the years. Proclamations were also received from the Pennsylvania Senate and House of Representatives.

The Pennsylvania Bureau of Forestry and the Wildlands Conservancy made presentations recognizing years of partnership with the conservation district. Former district directors as well as former district staff and Natural Resources Conservation Service staff were asked to stand and be recognized for their achievements throughout the conservation district's first half century.

Walk-A-Bout In Frederick

FREDERICK, Md. — The first Frederick County Walk-A-Bout will be held Monday, Nov. 25 from 10 a.m. until noon. Gary Grossnickle will be hosting the event.

Grossnickle Farm Inc. is milking 230 cows in a recently renovated flat parlor. Animals are housed in a six-row drive-through freestall barn.

The purpose of the Walk-A-Bout is to allow dairy producers a chance to learn more about dairy practices that are being implemented on other farms in the area. The informal atmosphere of these sessions will allow producers to pick up management tips, equipment and facility ideas, and provide a way for farmers to share success stories with other farmers in the community. Most of the time will be spent walking the facilities and discussing the components of the operation and how they contribute to the success of the dairy business.

For more information, contact Stanley W. Fultz, extension agent, dairy science, (301) 694-1594 ext. 3578.

duce milk?

I would like to touch on another subject within the dairy industry. We consumer's see many young cattle knee-deep in pure s--- in the so-called feed lot, around the big bale feeder. How can we be sure the cows are kept any better? Oh, because of the milk inspector. Yeah, maybe for me, but what aobut the 90% to 95% of consumers who never saw the inside of a dairy operation? Is it any wonder why milk consumption is off? Also, why the animal activists are a growing group? Enough said!

Clarence E. Scheaffer

Editor:

Several Farm Organizations across the United States are joining together in an attempt to prevent a collapse in prices paid to all dairy farmers.

As a result of the dramatic decline in the national cheese prices of nearly 40¢ per pound, prices paid to area dairy farmers could be reduced from the Septembers price by nearly $4.00 per cwt. (40¢ per gallon).

Representatives from several states organizations such as Pro Ag, Rural Vermonter, Empire Farm Alliance, New England Milk Producers, are joining forces with National Groups such as the National Family Farm Coalition, N.F.O., National Farmers Union, and others in the endeavor to ward off the possible disastrous prices paid to dairy farmers.

The groups, both individually and collectively will be urging the Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman to floor the basic formula price at $15.00 per cwt. until such time as a realistic method can be developed to price raw milk at the farm level.

The $15.00 per cwt. Basic Formula price should return a blend price to dairy farmers of at least $15.50 per cwt.

Also, the groups are planning meetings with key people in Washington D.C. in an attempt to floor the Basic Formula Price.

In addition the groups will be urging a complete investigation into the Green Bay Cheese Exchange to determine if prices are rigged against the dairy farmers.

Also, there will be attempts to have the cheese exchange eliminated as a prime mover in developing the Basic Formula Price.

In a conversation I had this morning with experts from the U.S.D.A. on the cost of producing milk, they admitted that dairy farmers can just break even at $14.00 per cwt. milk, but the dairymen need $15.00 milk to start making investments back into their farm and at $16.00 milk the farm can start returning something to the owner. Certainly, $12.00 milk will do none of the above.

Help the cause by either working with us or through your own organization. Urge the Secretary of Agriculture to take immediate action.

Nittany Lion Fall Classic Averages $1,470

JUDY PATTON
Union Co. Correspondent

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The 13th annual Nittany Lion Fall Classic Sale, held November 16th at the Penn State Ag Arena, had a new twist — the sale of a "Calf for a Cause."

Duane and Marilyn Hershey, along with Brad and Sandy Hershey, all from Cochranville, donated a December 1995 Celsius heifer calf for the sale for the benefit of the Four Diamonds Fund.

This fund helps families with children being treated for cancer at the Hershey Medical Center, including Duane and Marilyn Hershey, whose son Robert has been one of these children for the last two years.

The calf was sold three times: a syndicate bought it for $3,200, the Alpha Sigma Alpha sorority and Alpha Sigma Phi fraternity bought it for $2,100, and the final sale went to Fred Strouse, Mike Weimer and Harry Bachman for $2,000, bringing the total proceeds to $7,310.

The buyers said they will be selling the calf again at the Pennsylvania Holstein Convention Sale, donating half the proceeds to the Four Diamonds Fund.

Overall the sale totalled $117,625 on 80 head for an average of $1,470 per lot. For the Holsteins the total gross was $99,825, which was an average of $1,513 on 66 head. The 14 head of Jerseys sold for a total of $17,800, which was $1,271 per lot.

The top seller was Josan SB Feather, a springing Starbuck Holstein heifer bred to Hilltop Hanover-B Drew. Her dam is an EX-92 Trademark daughter with a high record of 27,370M 3.9%F 2.9%P. Consigned by Joseph Pavelski of Susquehanna, she sold for $2,350 to Mike Weimer, G. Knight, B. Hostetter, and Fred Strouse of Emlenton.

Dr. Laurie Joseph of Acme bought the second highest seller from Daniel and Laura Chard for $2,300. A Marksman daughter with a PTPI of +1279, Terra-Rose Marksman Kay is a Holstein yearling out of a VG-85 Cleitus dam with a record of 38,000M; 1,232F; 1,088P.

One of the highest selling Jerseys was Pleasant Valley Hercules Baffle, a 2-year-old fresh in July. Her Logan dam made 12,385M, 3.7%F, 3.5%P, at 2-2, Jennifer Miller of Cambridge Springs bought her for $1,800 from Pleasant Valley Jerseys in Chambersburg.

Merle Lawton of Newark Valley, N.Y. consigned the other highest selling Jersey, an April 1996 Barber daughter, Lawtons Barber Chime. Her dam is an EX-90 Opportunity daughter who made a record of 20,931M. She went to Waverly Farms of Clear Brook, Va., also for $1,800.

Other consignments sold for $2,000 or above were:

• Etazon Bridget-ET; consignor, Em Tran Inc., Elizabethtown; purchaser, Dennis Wolff, Millville, for $2,150.

• Lawrence-Haven RH Freda-Red; consignor, Paul Lawrence, New Castle; purchaser, Lavern Zook, Lewisburg, for $2,100.

• Cherry-Lor Quilt Target-ET; consignor, Ronald Hembury, Jr., Muncy; purchaser, Dennis and David Hottenstein, New Albany, for $2,100.

• Choice of female, Mascot X Formation; consignor, Donald Caldwell, Saegertown; purchaser,

Duane and Marilyn Hershey and their son Robert consigned this "Calf for a Cause" to raise money for the Four Diamonds fund, which helps families such as theirs with children being treated for cancer at the Hershey Medical Center. The calf sold three times for a total of $7,310.

From the left, consignors of the highest seller of the sale, Steve, Joe, Michele, and Kathy Pavelski, stand with sale staffers Josh Harvatine, Mike Weimer and Meranda Dum.

Penn State Dairy Science Club sale committee members are pictured here with the highest selling Holstein and Jersey. The sale grossed $117,625 on 80 head for an average of $1,470.

Penn State Dairymen's Club Held Annual Meeting

JUDY PATTON
Union Co. Correspondent

Dr. Darwin Braund told the Penn State Dairymen's Club that classrooms in the future will be homes and local computer sites, so colleges will have to change their programs accordingly. An animal science professor at North Carolina State University, Braund also said in this talk at the club's annual meeting on November 15 that ag colleges will have to become more "consumer oriented" to teach ag students how to meet market demands. They will also need to educate students about what agriculture and ag colleges mean to the public.

This year's club Service Award went to Duane Norman, who is a program leader at the U.S. Department of Agriculture Animal Improvement Program Laboratory in Beltsville, Maryland. Originally from a farm in Tioga County, Pennsylvania, Norman is a world leader in the development of genetic evaluation methods for milk solids and linear traits. He has won numerous awards for his research and publications. He also takes time to be a 4-H leader and Dairy Bowl coach in his local area.

Terri Snook was honored at the club meeting as the 1996 winner of the Poage Grant-in-Aid for excellence in dairy judging activities. A junior in dairy and animal science at Penn State from Lafayette, New Jeresey, she was the high individual at the 1994 New Jersey State 4-H Contest and the 1992 Delaware Valley Spring Contest. She also judged at the 1994 National 4-H Contest. Terri has served as corresponding secretary of the Penn State Dairy Science Club, New Jersey's alternate state dairy princess, and an assistant for the Nittany Lion Fall Classic Sale.

Chris Swartz and Peter Witmer, the current Dairymen's Club president and vice president, were re-elected as club directors, and Jeff Hostetter was also elected to the board. Beth Rancy will replace Dale Olver as secretary-treasurer. Other club officers will be elected next spring at the annual board meeting.

Penn State Dairy Judging Team coach Dale Olver reported to the club the results from this year's collegiate judging contests. At the Eastern States Expo, the team of Meranda Dum, David Fava, Charles Houp and Kraig Sellers placed second overall and first in two breeds. Dum and Fava were in the top 10 overall individuals.

Sellers placed second overall and in reasons at the Pennsylvania All-American, while Houp was first in linear evaluation. The team placed first in linear, sixth overall, and in the top five for three breeds.

Penn State was first in Holsteins and in the top five in Guernseys and Ayrshires at the National Intercollegiate Contest at the World Dairy Expo in Madison, WI. The team also placed third in reasons and sixth overall. Dum earned All-American status, placing as high individual in Guernsey's, second in Ayshires, third in reasons and fourth in Holsteins. Sellers was ninth in Guernseys and Houp seventh in Holsteins.

At the final contest at the North American Livestock Expo in Louisville, the team of Amy Marshall, Crystal Miller and Kraig Sellers placed sixth overall, with Sellers and Miller making to the top 10 overall individuals list.

The Penn State Dairymen's Club, whose members are alumni and friends of the Penn State dairy science program, maintains an endowment fund to help finance dairy judging team activities.

Maryland Egg Council Presents Awards

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Honors and awards were handed out to five persons at the Maryland Egg Council's 29th annual banquet, held Oct. 9 at Martin's in Westminster.

John Doerr, professor of poultry toxicology and nutrient management at the University of Maryland at College Park, was honored with the Herb Becherman "Friend of the Industry" Award. Doerr is the past president of the egg council. Because he was on his way to a speaking engagement in Brazil, his daughter, Elizabeth Doerr, a University of Maryland student, accepted the award on his behalf.

The first Owen P. Thomas Development Award, which included a plaque and $1,000 scholarship, was presented to Nada Tamin. Tamin is a doctorate student at the University of Maryland, researching relevant issues in the egg industry. The scholarship was established in memory of Dr. Owen Thomas, chair of the poultry science department at the University of Maryland, 1971-1987, for his long service to the egg industry. Thomas died suddenly last December.

Doug Statler of Greencastle, Pa. (Lehman's Egg Service) was honored with the Maryland Egg Council Service Award. Alan Wenger of Rheems, Pa. (Wenger's Feed Mill) also received the Herb Becherman "Friend of the Industry" award along with Doerr.

The banquet also provided recognition for Rebecca Ensor, a 16-year-old 4-H member from Woodstock (Baltimore County), who won championship honors at the 1996 4-H Egg Preparation and Demonstration Contest during the Maryland State Fair. Her recipe for grapenut custard was published in the banquet program bulletin. She will represent Maryland in national competition on Nov. 21 during the National 4-H Poultry and Egg Conference in Louisville, Ky.

This quartet accepted awards at the 1996 Maryland Egg Council banquet, held Oct. 9 at Martin's in Westminster. Shown are, from left, Elizabeth Doerr, with her father's Herb Becherman "Friend of the Industry" award; Doug Statler of Greencastle, Pa. (Lehman's Egg Service), with the Maryland Egg Council Service Award; Alan Wenger of Rheems, Pa. (Wenger's Feed Mill), who also received the Herb Becherman Award; and Nada Tamin, a doctorate student at the University of Maryland at College Park, who received the first Owen P. Thomas Memorial Scholarship Award.

Reassessment Has Somerset Farmers Looking At Options

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

MEYERSDALE (Somerset Co.) — The second of five informational meetings covering the topic of Farmland Reassessment in Somerset County found about 60 persons converging into the forum room of the Meyersdale elementary school, eager for any good news that can help them cut their real estate taxes.

Shortly after the beginning of the new year, property owners in the county will be notified of their real property assessments, a process which began in 1995. The last one was done in 1974.

"There is a lot of misunderstanding and this series of meetings is something we are having around the county, so that next spring you can make some informed decisions," said Bob Brown, director of the county extension service in Somerset.

"Clean and Green and Farmland Preservation are not the same thing," he stated. "With Clean and Green you keep complete control over your land."

The landowners, however, by meeting's end seemed still uncertain that Clean and Green — Act 319 — The Pennsylvania Farmland and Assessment Act of 1974 — would achieve the right end if they applied and were found eligible.

Talking among themselves several said outright that they will probably just pay the higher taxes and be done with it.

What the landowners viewed as a sticking point in the Act's three "Use-value Assessment" categories was the criteria listed in that of "Agricultural Reserve."

Sandwiched between Agricultural Use and Forest Reserve, the landowners found much to ponder in Agricultural Reserve five main points, especially the last three.

Agricultural reserve (land that is capable of, but not currently being farmed), cannot be less than 10 contiguous acres in area; it must be noncommercial; it must be open to the public and used for outdoor recreation or for enjoyment of scenic or natural beauty; no charge or fee for using the land; no discrimination against persons using the land.

"In agricultural reserve," said John Riley, the Somerset County chief assessor, "you can't post the land, you must keep it open to public use.

Riley said that somebody at the previous meeting that some 90 persons attended at the courthouse in Somerset, raised the liability issue if a landowner has land in ag-reserve and must allow the public to use it.

Riley said the farmer should be protected unless he has been negligent in some way. He did imply, however, that there's no guarantee against a shrewd attorney hired by a person who is involved in an incident while on that particular piece of acreage.

Clean and Green's positive benefits impressed dairyman Bill Yoder from Meyersdale RD who puts his dairy animals through a rotational and intensive grazing setup.

"I'll probably apply if it can save on my taxes," he said, reflecting on the statements made by Brown and Riley. "I want to make sure my land is fairly assessed," he added.

"This is what's important about Clean and Green, you can save money on taxes," said Riley adding that getting the word out to landowners of 10 or more acres that are devoted to agriculture, is necessary.

Bob Brown (center), director of the county extension in Somerset, answers individual questions regarding Clean and Green (Act 319).

June 1, 1997 is the deadline for the applications to be in. But applicants were and are urged to turn in their completed forms now without the final signature, to expedite the process before the final date.

"The new assessed values are absolutely going to be higher than the current assessed values," Riley predicted.

To illustrate how assessed value and fair market value are evaluated, Riley used an overhead projector to show a breakdown of two anonymous farms that recently, were sold in separate Somerset County municipalities.

He said that some properties are assessed too high and others, too low, as the numbers from the two farms illustrated.

"The whole purpose of reevaluation," he said, "is to get everyone in the middle."

Following the presentation, officials went amongst the group to answer individual questions, an approach unlike that in Somerset where efforts to answer questions from the front of the room were not as satisfactory.

Assisting Brown and Riley were Joe Hudack from the county assessment office. He was in charge of the Clean and Green applications. Alan Miller, assistant chief assessor, and from appraiser Cole-Layer Trumble, David Depp project manager and Stan Sitko.

Farm-City Events Create Forum For Friendships

The local extension service office usually has information on what is being planned, even if it isn't directly involved.

How the Farm-City programs develop. how they are supported, and the effectiveness of a program in creating an atmosphere of peace and a desire for mutual understanding, usually depends upon one thing — the people involved.

For those in counties where Farm-City activities are wanting, or absent, the message from those with successful programs is that it doesn't have to be that way.

According to Dyan Yingst, a spokesperson for the state Department of Agriculture and the state Farm-City Program coordinator, an example of how one person can be a torch for a successful program is Tioga County's director of the county USDA Farm Service Agency office.

Sherry Elder has been involved in helping to start up several Farm-City programs over the years, as she's moved to different counties in job progression.

For her, the Farm-City program is a personal pet project., one of the few ways to really get people together.

The format for success that she's found is to hold a regularly scheduled, well-advertised summertime Farm-City day, a fall Farm-City banquet, and a job-exchange program.

For Tioga County, the Farm-City Day is held the second Saturday in July. The banquet is held the second week in November and features the previous year's Farm-City Day host-farm family, the current year's host family, and the upcoming year's host family, who are introduced to the audience.

Since becoming a FSA agent, Elder said that she been involved in Farm-City activities.

She was involved in Farm-City events when she worked in Crawford County, in 1976, and when she moved to Fayette County, she helped get a program off the ground. She worked there for two years and then got a chance to move to Tioga County to work at their FSA office.

On the way to here job interview, she said she noticed an attractive farm along Rt. 287, owned by Eric and Dixie Cooledge and thought that it would make a great place to hold a Farm-City Day — proximity to Wellsboro, and other higher density areas, and also to the farming community.

She said she blocked out day and held a meeting to see if there was any interest in a Farm-City event. Eric came to it and their farm became the first site.

The county's seventh Farm-City Day is to be held Saturday, July 12, at Schmelway Farms, Rt. 414, east of Liberty, Ogdensburg.

"Sherry strives to promote positive interactions between farmers, agribusiness and consumers," Yingst said. "She is a very enthusiastic and energetic individual, and the Farm-City Program is fortunate to have her support."

Elders said that key to getting a program started is working first with the farmers who are willing to open up their farm to visitors.

While she admits that she has a passion for being involved with Farm-City activities, she it helps to always be making contacts for potential future farm families to serve as a host farm of an event.

Other people to approach about getting involved include local business leaders, organizational and local political leaders, such as county commissioners, can lend support. There are FFA and 4-H groups and leaders, and potentially additional groups that can play a role in developing a program.

While there traditionally hasn't been a strong alliance between Farm-City and local fair events, the two would seem to be a natural match, or at least a display about Farm-City activities could be set up at a local fair to garner interest.

Newspaper, radio and television reporters usually seek local colorfull feature stories of such events, especially during "slow" news periods.

Farm-City programs, especially the job-exchange programs — have a reputation for developing long-lasting relationships between farm and non-farm families.

Pa. DHIA Advisory Committee, Field Staff Meet

DAVID BIGELOW
Training Coordinator

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The advisory committee and field staff of Pa. DHIA recently met in State College at the Best Western to be updated on a number of upcoming projects. Among this was being updated on National DHIA's new environment.

Pa. DHIA recently completed its annual fall conferences. This year employees from each region attended one full day of training in State College at the Days Inn, during the week of Oct. 14-18.

These conferences were informative in the fact that marketing strategies, payroll update, lab concerns, field talk and all the computers received an update to make the program more user friendly.

Having the conferences in State College allowed the staff to be more accessible to the technicians each day of the conference week.

Pa. DHIA holds three conferences a year, along with monthly mini meetings, to continually update and educate the technicians on any changes. Please feel free to contact Pa. DHIA at 1-800-344-8378 if we can assist with your dairy operation.

Average Farm Feed Costs For Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

Corn, No.2y — 2.94 bu., 5.26 cwt.

Wheat, No. 2 — 4.15 bu., 6.93 cwt.

Barley, No. 3 — 3.19 bu., 6.82 cwt.

Oats, No. 2 — 2.27 bu., 7.07 cwt.

Soybeans, No. 1 — 6.34 bu., 10.61 cwt.

Ear Corn — 66.41 ton, 3.32 cwt.

Alfalfa Hay — 138.75 ton, 6.94 cwt.

Mixed Hay — 135.00 ton, 6.75 cwt.

Timothy Hay — 131.75 ton, 6.59 cwt.

DHIA Code Of Ethics Effective Jan. 1

DAVID BIGELOW
Training Coordinator

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — National DHIA is in the process of creating a new environment in the DHIA world effective Jan. 1.

The "Code of Ethics" will replace the rules.

However, the real direction for DHIA in the coming years may not be a great deal different from the direction of the old DHIA.

Jill McGregor, director of field services at National DHIA, recently met wih the Pa. DHIA field staff in State College to update and answer questions concerning the upcoming changes at the national level.

National DHIA recognizes the fact that collecting and processing data and turning it into information that is useful to the membership is its main concern. However, this same date fulfills many other needs in the dairy industry such as utilization by the USDA-AIPL for genetic evaluations. In addition, records contributing to the national database are used for other research, education and genetic performance awards.

The ability to fulfill these important needs in an ever changing environment is essential to the future for Pa. DHIA.

Beginning January 1997, DHIA will embark on a new approach to enforcement by replacing NCDHIP rules with record standards and a code of ethics. Each component plays an important role for shifting the enforcement responsibility from DHI alone to our producers and allies.

As members of Pa. DHIA, you will have the opportunity to be updated by staff at the annual banquets as well as thorugh the use of news releases.

Please feel free to contact a Pa. DHIA technician, or call the Pa. DHIA state office at 1-800-344-8378, if we can help answer any questions you might have regarding National DHIA's Code of Ethics or if we can help with your dairy operation.

Farm-City Events Create

Elders and Butters are to be married Dec. 8.

While the typical close relationships that develop through Farm-City programs are better described as family friendships, there are many potential benefits that can result from establishing job-exchange programs.

Job exchange programs are fairly widely used as Farm-City activities because they capitalize on what is largely regarded as the best type of long-term effective education and advertising — personal experience and word-of-mouth.

When they get back to their own workplaces, those from non-farming backgrounds who learn about actual farming practices can become "experts" on farming among their day-to-day aquaintences.

Every visitor to a farm should be considered a spokesperson of agriculture.

Whether the message that gets spread by that spokesperson is good or bad depends upon the experience they had at the farm.

Though the sentiment has been often repeated over the years, perhaps there has never been a time with such a strong need for honest, face-to-face exchanges of information between the farming and non-farming people, than there is today.

There are a multitude of rural/urban issues with which to contend. Zoning problems, other land-use issues, and taxing fairness are just a few.

In addition, there seems to be a general increase in misleading portrayals of day-to-day life.

In some cases, the purpose for distorting truth is clearly to entertain.

In other cases, such as in television or other photograph-based commercial advertisements, fantasy is presented as reality in order to stimulate a purchase of a product.

Automobiles are often portrayed on long empty highways without electricty and telephone lines and poles. Those highways don't exist and the fake landscapes are actually composite images created using computer and other techniques to make the fantasy images seem real.

Who may be the worst offenders of the truth, however, are the self-created lobbyist/advocates.

These are people without a proveable or registered constituency, who claim to represent classes of people and segments of society.

Using fascimile machines, letterheads and titles, they know how to work the media's "news" system by making outrageous, unsubstantiated, and generally non-science supported claims.

The "news" media tends to foster these claims because they are mostly sensational, and sensationalized claims attract readers and viewers.

In an era when job competition is tight, fund-raising based on inaccurate claims has become big business.

Some of these people claiming to defend animals or consumers are in reality professional fund raisers. They tend to reappear time and time again, each time wearing a different mantle and crusading for cash to support a new cause.

They make a living in the nation's largest and most expensive cities distorting facts, vilifying animal use and farming practices, and creating public fear of food in order to raise "non-profit" funds for their "organizations."

They create new organizations to raise funds as each new "cause" is discovered. They also frequently name their organizations so as to confuse themselves with established respectable organizations.

In fact, there are even publications devoted to helping these types of operators come up with ways to raise funds and stage protests and manipulate the media.

The only way to fight these career opportunists is to invite the public to see for themselves what animal use is about.

Farm-City programs can be a major effort in the battle to break through the false illusion of agriculture that is presented to the general public.

Most non-farming, job-exchange participants have reported learning about the level of sophistication and dedication needed to be successful in farming and the new respect and admiration they have for their agricultural partners.

Likewise, many farmer participants report that they have taken away a new-found respect and understanding for certain non-farming jobs.

There is a national Farm-City Council that can provide some information and support materials. Supported by national businesses and donors, it held a conference in April in Birmingham, Alabama, where participants from around the United States shared experiences of successful programs, and awards were presented.

The national program has announced that public service announcements are expected to be aired during official National Farm-City Week.

A fall newsletter by the national organization has information about new materials available to help with programs, such Farm-City place mats, fact cards and a brochure with a list of ideas for projects and events.

There are costs associated with the materials, however. For more information about the National Farm-City Council Inc., call (312) 399-5764, or write to the organization at 225 Touhy Avenue, Park ridge, Illinois, 60068.

For those in the Pennsylvania seeking more information, call Yingst at (717) 787-5805.

She can provide some start-up kits and information and perhaps help with getting in contact with someone who may also have similar interests.

There are many excellent examples of Farm-City activities in Pennsylvania.

Berks County has two exchanges — a farmer/business exchange; and an agribusiness/non-ag business exchange.

The turnout at the their banquet is large, with more than 500 people and the food is usually considered very excellent.

They also offer different foods to sample and distribute agricultural prizes, such as quilts and foods.

The Lebanon Farm-City program is to start at 6 p.m., Dec. 11 with a social hour, that includes foods, commodity royalty, entertainment, and displays.

Tables are set up in the center area of a large convention barn at the Expo fairgrounds and tables can be sponsored by businesses or individuals at $200 for eight people.

The ticket price per individual is $10, but there is no guarantee of group seating at the banquet, unless tables are secured through the sponsorship.

The former Miss Pennsylvania Lynette Mertz is also to entertain, and the master of ceremonies is also a former Miss Pennsylvania, Kirstin Border-Rider.

The Cedar Crest High School chorus is to perform and the job exchange participants are to tell of their experiences.

Professors Work To Bring Harmony

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Across rural Pennsylvania, land development is bringing new residents with little previous exposure to farming into traditionally agricultural areas.

These nonfarming neighbors may complain about noise or odors from farms, or about agricultural practices such as pesticide or fertilizer application.

Conflicts often result, sometimes escalating into lawsuits. Pennsylvania's "Right to Farm" law offers farmers some legal protection from nuisance lawsuits, but because of the costs involved, no one really wins a legal battle.

"It's easier and cheaper to prevent problems from escalating in the first place," said Dr. Timothy Kelsey, assistant professor of agricultural economics at Penn State. "Building a trusting relationship with neighbors makes it much easier to discuss problems that arise."

"Good Neighbor Relations: Advice and Tips from Other Farmers," a new brochure from Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, contains tips and advice from 36 farmers on coexisting peacefully with nonfarming neighbors.

"We want to help farmers develop relations with their neighbors," said Kelsey, who prepared the brochure with Dr. Charles Abdalla, associate professor of agricultural economics.

"Farmers shouldn't be wholly responsible for keeping peace in a community, but they can take some steps to help build harmony."

The publication, which covers nine rules of thumb farmers have suggested for good neighbor relations, was developed as part of an ongoing Penn State Cooperative Extension program to help farmers, nonfarmers, and communities manage conflicts over agriculture, land issues or the environment.

"Developing and improving your relationship with your neighbors can be one of the most important activities you do to help your farm survive in a changing environment, especially if some of the neighbors are new to your community," Kelsey said.

Helping others understand the activities on your farm and fostering goodwill can be beneficial to everyone. "Neighbors may become more understanding and more respectful of farming practices," Kelsey said. "And farmers may discover easy ways to avoid needlessly antagonizing neighbors with farm activities."

"Good communication builds trust and allows people to discuss problems in a peaceful and respectful way," said Kelsey. "It helps neighbors learn that you are approachable and interested in their concerns. If a neighbor has a complaint about your farm, it is better that they feel comfortable enough to approach you directly instead of you hearing of it second-hand."

To obtain a copy of "Good Neighbor Relations," contact the Penn State Cooperative Extension office in your county, or the Publications Distribution Center, 112 Agricultural Administration Building, University Park, PA 16802.

If you do something special on your farm to help build or maintain better relations with your neighbors, Penn State Cooperative Extension would like to hear about it. Send your suggestions to: Good Neighbor Relations, c/o Tim Kelsey, Penn State Cooperative Extension, 105 Armsby Building, University Park, PA 16802. All suggestions will be treated confidentially.

DMI Names Executive

ROSEMONT, Ill. — Dairy Management Inc. (DMI) has named Jeanne M. Sowa as group executive, marketing programs and services.

Sowa will fill the position held by Gordon McDonald who has been appointed group executive of strategic planning and research for the organization.

Sowa will lead the strategic direction for Dairy Management's consumer marketing efforts, including consumer advertising, retail and foodservice promotion, and education programs.

In developing and implementing future marketing efforts, Sowa is to identify strategies for consumer and channel segmentation and product positioning.

Previously, Sowa served as vice president of consumer marketing in the United States for the National Cattlemen's Beef Association where she was responsible for establishing the strategic direction and priorities for the beef industry's consumer marketing efforts.

"Jeanne Sowa brings 15 years of integrated marketing, advertising and food service experience to one of the most critical positions in our organization," said Tom Gallagher, Dairy Management's chief executive officer.

"As dairy promotion progressively moves forward, Jeanne's successful track record in consumer marketing, category management and consumer segmentation make her a great addition to the Dairy Management Inc. team.

"Her expertise in product positioning will help us in building consistent, integrated national and state programs that are both consumer and customer-driven," Gallagher said.

Sowa is to start her new position on August 18.

She was awarded a master's degree of science and human nutrition from Michigan University in 1977 and a bachelor's degree of science from Pennsylvania State University in 1974. Sowa is a registered dietitian.

Separately, Gordon McDonald has been named group executive of planning and research. McDonald, who held the group executive, marketing program and services post for four years, will now be responsible for market research and the management of the planning process for both national and state and regional programs. He will also manage the development of implementation standards for these programs.

Dairy Management Inc. is a nonprofit organization formed by the National Dairy Board and the United Dairy Industry Association that conducts programs in integrated marketing communications, promotions and research for U.S. produced dairy products on behalf of America's dairy farmers.

Tobacco Growers See Higher Prices

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Tobacco growers can put the old prices aside.

While the start of tobacco growing season meant growers could nab a top price of $1.25 a pound last year (unchanged from the year before), prices this year have reached as high as $1.60 or even $1.65 a pound.

One grower, Larry Weaver of New Holland, said last week buyers offered him a price of $1.60 per pound for his Maryland-type tobacco, used to make cigarettes.

"But some say they've heard higher," said Weaver. "I talked to one guy who thought it was $1.65.

"Everybody's been aware that demand would be really good this year, but the price surprised everybody."

Why is the price so high?

According to Clark Stauffer of Golden Leaf Tobacco, "Companies would like it early this year. They need to fill orders. So we're having to do it quick."

Doing it quick means writing contracts weeks before the tobacco auction season starts. Traditionally, private buyers wait until the auction starts to "hone in" on a market price.

"Since we've had the auction, the market has waited on the auction to start," said Stauffer. "But this year it seems the market is being set at the farms."

Already, according to Stauffer, there's been quite a bit of tobacco put under contract in the county.

Eric Probst, who owns Paradise Tobacco Sales, said the Lancaster County tobacco farmer "is kind of in the driver seat this year. What I'm telling you is that the farmers stand to reap a good harvest on the tobacco crop."

The auction season at Paradise opens on Monday, Dec. 9.

Crop Adviser Exam Feb. 7

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — The Mid-Atlantic Certified Crop Adviser (MACCA) exam is to be held in this region on Friday, February 7, at the Maryland Department of Agriculture (MDA) in Annapolis, Md. and the Holiday Inn Broad Street in Richmond, Va.

The Mid-Atlantic Certified Crop Adviser Board has been established for New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, and West Virginia.

The Certified Crop Adviser (CCA) program is a nationally recognized, voluntary certification program developed through the collaborative efforts of the public sector and the agricultural industry to ensure high standards for crop advisers. It is intended for anyone who makes nutrient, pesticide, crop, or environmental recommendations to producers, including dealers, distributors, applicators, consultants, manufacturers, allied industries, and state and federal agency personnel.

The CCA program is administered by state or regional boards in association with the American Society of Agronomy, which handles similar programs for specialists in agronomy, crop consulting, weed science, and other agricultural disciplines. To become Mid-Atlantic CCA certified, an applicant must:

- Have at least two years of crop advising experience with a bachelor's degree in agriculture, three years of crop advising experience with an associate degree in agriculture, or have a minimum of four years of crop advising experience post high school.
- Provide employer and client references.
- Pass a national and the two MACCA regioinal exams.
- Sign a code of ethics.

To remain certified, a member must participate in 40 hours of continuing education over a two-year period with a minimum of 10 hours in any one year, and undergo an audit biannually by the MACCA Board to verify continuing education and adherence to the code of ethics.

As a CCA, an individual will receive continuing education credits for a wide variety of agricultural topics.

"The program helps demonstrate that the agricultural industry prides itself on high standards of professionalism and knowledge," said Mark Fuchs, chairman of the MACCA.

The deadline for the February 7, 1997 exam is December 13, 1996. For more information, contact Lynne Hoot, (410) 956-5771.

I would like to thank the 609 tobacco farmers for your support during Jan. and Feb. 1996. TOBACCO AUCTIONS ARE SCHEDULED TO BEGIN DEC. 9, 1:30 P.M. We are excited about selling your tobacco at Farmers Tobacco Warehouse. It is very important to support your tobacco auction. The future of Lancaster County's tobacco auctions depends on you the farmers!

For tobacco auctions to survive, farmers must support them. Country buying will hurt the auction. Do you want auction to survive???

We pledge to be fair to all buyers and farmers. The companies are beginning to recognize the importance of our auctions. Our prices could go much higher than the offered contract prices in the country. Companies have advised me to market all tobacco in Dec. and Jan. for best prices.

Receiving Dates:
Sat. thru Fri. - 7 AM - 4 PM
Sale - 1:30 PM Mon., Wed., Fri.

We will begin receiving tobacco on Dec. 2 at 7 am. Trucking, Cotton Twine and 609 Seed are available.

Water Quality Tour Looks At Four Berks County Farms

Sound Conservation Practices Take Commitment, Time

Feeg Dairy
Womelsdorf

The entire "package" of conservation was highlighted at the Roland Feeg Dairy Farm in Womelsdorf. Altogether, Feeg farms 390 acres of corn, wheat, soybeans, and hay.

"This is a fine example of as nice a farmland package as you can get in Berks County," said Randy McCormack, Berks County district conservationist, who provided a tour of the conservation practices at the dairy.

One of the long-term commitments Feeg made began in 1962, when his father-in-law installed sod waterways to protect the soil from leaving the farm by capturing runoff.

In the years since, according to John Fior, soil conservationist with the Natural Resources Conservation Service (formerly Soil Conservation Service), Feeg has installed 6,800 feet of grass waterways and 3,300 feet of diversions on the farm.

Total surface drainage is 15,700 feet.

Feeg maintains 120 milking cows and 60 young stock of Holstein cows. Manure is stored in an earthen waste storage pond with a concrete bottom, which holds 4-6 months of storage. The capacity of the lagoon is 250,000 gallons, which is pumped out and spread three times per year in the spring and fall. Bedded packed manure from dry cow and young stock facilities is spread every 2-3 months.

McCormack said that the manure is looked on not as a waste, but as a resource to match the crop needs.

Feeg said his manure has been tested and reports that it is good for the farm. Soil tests show that he needs potassium, but phosphorous levels are good on the farm.

Contour strips are maintained on 196 acres, and field stripcropping totals 151 acres, according to the conservation district.

Between the sod waterways (planted with tall fescue and perennial ryegrass), the contours are rotated for one year in beans, two years of corn, and back to wheat.

McCormack said, "By putting these practices in, we're cutting erosion 50 to 75 percent."

To maintain water quality on the Feeg Dairy, roof water flows to an 8-inch pipe to a grass diversion. Also, to make use of an existing spring, 2-inch pipe brings fresh spring water from a springbox to a cement trough a the rate of about 250 gallons per minute. Feeg said the trough, in winter, never freezes.

Clyde Myers, Berks extension agent, told those at the tour that many of the practices took 30 years or more to develop and provide a fine example of what conservation farmers are doing in the county to protect water quality.

Martin Dairy
Womelsdorf

At the Floyd Martin dairy in Womelsdorf, one big conservation practice involves combining stormwater runoff from the barn and milkhouse roofs into an 8-inch pipe into a culvert at the edge of his farm.

The pipe is protected by a screen, called a "critter barrier," to keep the pipe open when it rains.

Martin, who operates a 40 cow (milking) and 30 (young stock) dairy, has implemented an array of conservation practices to protect water flowing into the Tulpehocken Creek. One of those is 2,255 feet of streambank fencing used in conjunction with a crushed stone cattle crossing over the Tulpehocken.

The fencing was installed with the use of Act 319 cost-share money. The fencing not only benefits the cows, but prevents erosion by keeping the cows out of the creek.

Martin said he maintains growth around the fencing by positioning posts close to the creek and using a weed whacker to trim only the larger, more troublesome weeds.

Clyde Myers, extension agent, said, "We hope more farmers will consider stream bank fencing. We think it's a win/win situation, both from an animal aspect and a water quality aspect."

However, money from ASCS to finance streambank protection is "drying up," said Jack Schonely, Berks County Conservation District manager. As a result, the districts and extension are looking for ways to help the farmers finance the fencing, which Schonely said acts as "buffer zones to lessen the sediment going into the Blue Marsh Lake."

Dehart Farm
Mt. Aetna

Some of the conservation practices were installed decades ago at the Dehart Farm, formerly the Bohn Farm, now operated by John Schueller in Mt. Aetna.

The farm includes 225 acres of corn, soybeans, and alfalfa.

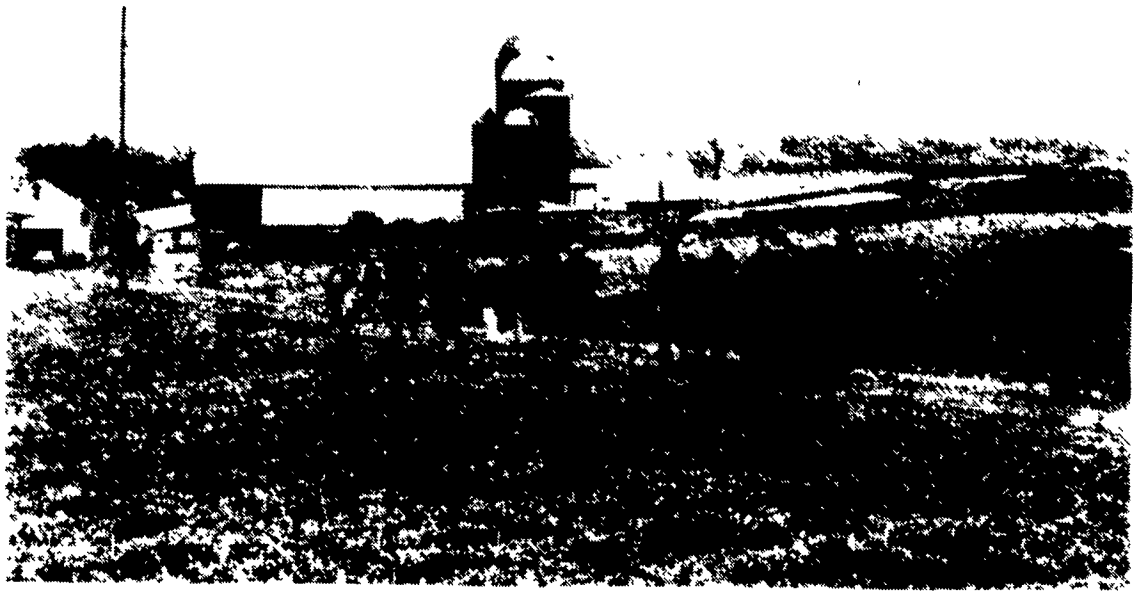
Some of the cropland terraces, according to tour guide John Fior of NRCS, built before 1980 had "lifespans only about 20 years without major overhaul work."

The dairy operated by Schueller includes 55 milking and 45 head of young stock. The farm totals about 291 acres, of which about 225 are tillable, according to Schueller. Half of the acres are in cropland terraces.

At the farm, stream bank fencing includes 3,655 feet of high tensile wire. Two cattle crossings are made of concrete waffle slats. A stream bank filter strip is used to stabilize the stream banks, with controlled grazing in a fenced area.

Diversions total 3,300 feet, and

(Turn to Page A35)



During the tour, 10 students from Tulpehocken High School in Bernville also inspected the conservation practices at the Feeg Farm. Christine Williams, ag science instructor at Tulpehocken, explained that the students, studying environmental agriculture, were looking at the various water quality control techniques on the farms.

The pipe is protected by a screen, called a "critter barrier," to keep the pipe open when it rains.

This concrete settlement basin is the mainstay of barnyard runoff control at the dairy operated by Wilbur and Arlene Hershey in Bethel.

The settlement basin, constructed at a cost of $7,500 with Chesapeake Bay program cost-share money, collects a little more than a foot of manure and prevents it from running to a farm pond within a 100 yards of the barnyard. Wilbur Hershey, with hands on fencing in center, inspects the basin.

400 feet of grass waterways are used. The waterways are 25-feet wide planted in a combination of Kentucky 31 fescue and perennial rye. Strips are maintained in hay, small grain, and corn.

Sod diversions are maintained on mostly the steeper ground and can be used about 20 years before overhaul work is needed.

During the farm tour, snow showers were the norm as temperatures plunged into the 30s.

Hershey Dairy
Bethel

A concrete settlement basin is the mainstay of barnyard runoff control at the dairy operated by Wilbur and Arlene Hershey in Bethel.

The settlement basin, constructed at a cost of $7,500 with Chesapeake Bay program cost-share money, collects a little more than a foot of manure and prevents it from running to a farm pond within a 100 yards of the barnyard.

Wilbur said that the farm cares for 145 milking and 120 replacement stock of grade Holstein. In all, 450 acres, included rented ground, are managed.

The farm itself includes 247 acres of corn, wheat, soybeans, and alfalfa hay. Manure is stored in a completely earthen bank storage which holds 4-6 months of manure. The manure is spread three times a year in early spring, early fall, and late fall.

The manure is chiseled in. Bedded packed manure from dry cow and young stock is spread when needed.

A grass waterway carries water from the concrete settling-basin to a filter area in the pasture. When full, a skid loader is used to dump the settling basin manure to the earth bank storage..

Still under installation at the farm, according to Ray Hershey, is a spouting system to collect rainwater from an old bank barn, bank feeder roof, and freestall barn roofs. The water is fed to an underground pipe which empties into the pond.

According to the district, diversions total 2,500 feet at the farm, with grass waterways totaling 600 feet and contour stripcropping in place on 67 acres.

During the tour, 10 students from Tulpehocken High School in Bernville also inspected the conservation practices. Christine Williams, ag science instructor at Tulpehocken, explained that the students, studying environmental agriculture, were looking at the various water quality control techniques on the farms.

Randy McCormack, Berks County conservationist, center with cap, reviews the conservation plans at the Feeg Farm.

Farmers Union Inducts Two Into Hall Of Fame

founded in 1988 to recognize members whose dedication and hard work have contributed to the success of the farm organization.

Junk said, "PFU has long tradition of working with family farmers across the state in areas of legislation, cooperation and education. The Hall of Fame is a way to recognize the hard work of those members who contributed to our success."

Bentz has been a member of PFU since its inception. "I was a member of the first annual state convention 25 years ago. Actually I was member of the advisory committee before our state was even chartered as a Farmers Union state."

In addition, Bentz is an advocate of a new cooperation movement in York County. "Grain producers in York County found themselves with no way to ship their grain. A group of us decided to get together and cooperatively meet our need for a grain handling facility," he said.

Junk commended Bentz and Rynd for their continued involvement in PFU and their contributions to rural Pennsylvania.

"Jack is an expert in dairy policy and PFU has always looked to him for advice on those issues," said Junk. Rynd, Farmers Union Milk Marketing Cooperative president, has been an active member of PFU since the beginning.

"This organization has been instrumental in shaping dairy policy, not only in Pennsylvania but also in Washington," Rynd said. "I am very proud of this award and will continue to work with PFU to make the dairy industry viable for family farmers."

Pennsylvania Farmers Union is a grassroots family farm organization working for the betterment of producers across the state.

United States Department of Agriculture Rural Development Secretary Jill Long-Thompson encouraged the participants at the Farmers Helping Farmer Conference to "work togehter to make rural America a better place." The conference was held in conjunction with the 25th annual convention.

"We need to find new ways to partner with government and the private sector to create an opportunity for the future of rural America," Long-Thompson said. "We have a successful history of these partnerships, rural electrification, higher education and the rural water system. We need to find new opportunities for people who live on the farm and expand agriculture opportunties for them."

The Farmers Union conference featured experts in the cooperative development from across the state. "This conference is an excellent vehicle for producers to explore new ways to add value to their products," said PFU President Bob Junk. "Farmers Union has always supported the cooperative movement, and we encourage our producres to control more of their product to increase its value."

Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brosius also urged the participants to "work with the government to create new marketing opportunities for agriculture products." The Ridge Administration has been very active in developing new markets and we will continue those efforts."

Junk said the conference was the first step producers need to take to generate new ideas. "Our goal was to give producers an opportunity to explore new markets and to openly discuss what their possibilties are for the future."

National FFA Elects Officer Team

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The six student members who will lead the National FFA Organization for the 1996-1997 year were elected Nov. 16 at the 69th National FFA Convention.

Corey Rosenbusch, a 19-year-old from Glen Rose, Texas, is the new national FFA president. Holly Bentley, 19, of Sabina, Ohio, was elected national FFA secretary. Vice presidents representing each region are: Brad Montgomery, 19, of McDonald, Kan., central region; Raymond Starling, 20, of Autryville, N.C., eastern region; William Charles "Charlie" Jones, 20, of Billingsley, Ala., southern region; and Rachel Fehringer, 20, of Peetz, Colo., western region. The officers will take a year-long leave of absence from college to serve their term.

Rose, the son of Gary and Vickie Rosenbusch, is a member of the Glen Rose FFA Chapter, where his father is the adviser. As his supervised agricultural experience program (SAE) Rose raised swine. He is a sophomore majoring in agricultural development at Texas A&M University.

Bentley's parents are Roger and Beverly Bentley. She is a member of the East Clinton FFA Chapter where her adviser is Kenneth Fliehman. Bentley's diverse SAE includes swine production, corn and soybean production, and fruit and vegetable production, consisting of pumpkins, gourds, and Indian corn. She is a sophomore majoring in agricultural education at The Ohio State University.

Montgomery, the son of Lindon and Diane Montgomery, is a member of the Cheylin FFA Chapter. His adviser is Max Keltz. Montgomery's SAE consists of sheep production, registered seed wheat production, and placement in an agribusiness firm. Montgomery attends Kansas State University where he is a sophomore majoring in agricultural economics.

Starling is the son of Murd and JoAnne Starling. A member of the Midway FFA Chapter, his advisers are Barry Croom and Glenn Howell. As his SAE, Starling was involved in nursery crop production as well as placement on a tobacco and swine farm. A junior at North Carolina State University, Starling is majoring in agricultural education.

Jones's parents are Charles and Jan Jones. He is a member of the Billingsley FFA Chapter where his adviser is Clayton Spencer. Horse production and forage crops are part of his diverse SAE. Jones is a junior at Auburn University majoring in agricultural economics.

Fehringer is the daughter of Kenneth and Judith Fehringer. A member of the Peetz FFA Chapter, her adviser is Larry Geu. Fehringer's SAE consists of horse production and agricultural placement. She is a junior at Colorado State University where she is majoring in agricultural economics.

During their year of service the national officers each will travel more than 100,000 miles making hundreds of appearances on behalf of the FFA. The national officers represent members to officials in government, business, education and agriculture. As they travel during the year, they meet with members on the local, state and national levels.

National FFA Foundation Sets New Record

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — For the 30th consecutive year, the National FFA Foundation has set a record level of support for FFA and agricultural education programs.

At the 69th National FFA Convention, Allan R. Johnson, 1996 FFA Foundation Sponsors' Board chairman, announced that the Foundation raised a total of $6,707,000 in 1996 to support projects and programs for FFA and agricultural education, an all-time record.

Johnson, president of Farm Progress Companies, Inc., said the contributions of the more than 1,000 Foundation sponsors help prepare future agricultural leaders.

"The FFA provides excellent training, not only for agricultural careers, but also for personal leadership skills," he said. "My industry colleagues and I know that supporting the FFA today ensures us well-trained, motivated employees tomorrow."

Johnson introduced 1997 FFA Foundation Sponsors' Board Chairman-elect Wayne L. Beck, vice president — supply management, Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc. Beck announced the 1997 Foundation theme, "FFA — Leaders with a Vision."

Since 1944, the National FFA Foundation has provided more than $70 million to FFA members for awards, scholarships, and achievement programs.

Russell Combines Accounting, Agriculture

Twelve years old and already in debt. By choice. As a future accountant and tax attorney, Richard Russell was never scared of handling money. With his first loan of about $9,000, Russell bought 13 head of breeding cows. Five years later, he used earnings from the livestock venture to purchase a 240-acre farm with his brother. The two also rented 200 acres to grow corn and alfalfa hay.

Russell, now 20, has a 110-acre malt barley contract as well as a 100-acre spring wheat contract. He also continues to farm land in the Basin, Wyo., area with his brother.

Russell's agricultural success has earned him recognition as the 1996 National FFA American Star Farmer, one of the agricultural education organization's highest honors.

From his first day in the Riverside FFA Chapter, Russell's goal was to be a state agricultural proficiency winner and a state FFA degree recipient. He served as chapter treasurer and president, competed at the state level in management and mechanics judging, and won the national forage crop proficiency award. As a result of the award, Russell participated in an agricultural experience tour of Europe. "I feel that there is a special advantage to be obtained from traveling abroad," he said, "In current management theory, diversities are said to be an asset. Having traveled abroad, I have become a more diverse person."

Russell's career plans are proof of his varied interests. "I will attend the University of Wyoming this fall and continue my education in accounting," he said. "My present plans are to become a certified public accountant, then go to law school. I plan to become a tax attorney. By using computers and the Internet, I plan to stay in the Big Horn Basin of Wyoming and stay involved in farming, my true passion."

Computers already are a key element in Russell's operation. "I use a computerized accounting system to keep track of expenses, income and inventory," he said. "This allows me to make better management decisions to minimize costs and to maximize after-tax income."

Russell is the son of Cheryl and Donald Russell. His FFA adviser is Tony Anson.

Bischoff Turns Free Wood Into Profitable Enterprise

Chad Bischoff's high school business venture was crucial to his family's survival. His father, who was seriously injured in a car accident, could't work for more than a year. During that time, "family finances were tight and one way I could help was through cutting firewood," Bischoff said.

After clearing farmers' fence rows of trees and brush, Bischoff heated the family's Marshall, Mich., house with part of the wood and sold the rest. Then, when the local chain saw dealer went out of business, Bischoff and his father decided to open their own dealership called the Chad & Dad Saw Shop. Now the partners own a power equipment sales outlet with projected sales of about $600000. They plan to build a new facility soon to accommodate their growing business. Their goal is to earn $3 million in gross sales over the next 10 years.

The National FFA Organization reocognized Bischoff's accomplishments in agriculture by naming him the 1996 American Star in Agribusiness, one of the organization's highest honors.

Bischoff, now 21, believes he's been able to expand his business at such a rapid pace because he sets goals and plans the steps to achieve them. It took only 12 months to expand his equipment line from one brand of chain saw to 16. By that time he also offered lawn and garden equipment, boats, and motors.

"Our sales have more than doubled each year as we get a higher profile in the power equipment field and add new lines of equipment," he said.

Attractive showroom displays "give the impression that the customer is welcome to browse and inspect the equipment," he said. And no matter what else is going on, Bischoff always pays prompt attention to customer inquiries and follows up quickly on sales leads. Inventory, billing and customer service also are top priorities.

"Profit is realized only when you have a rapid turnover of stock, an efficient service department and up-to-date receivables," Bischoff said.

An active member of the Marshall FFA Chapter, Bischoff was chapter vice president, competed in the state forestry skills, crop skills, and agricultural issues forum career development events and won the national sales and service proficiency award. His FFA adviser is Floyd Beneker and he is the son of Gale Meade and Ronald Bischoff.

National FFA Organization Gives New Award For Diversity

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The National FFA Organization presented the new H.O. Sargent Award at the 69th National FFA Convention to recognize individuals who have achieved and promoted diversity in agricultural education and the FFA.

This award is a modification of the H.O. Sargent Award that existed in the New Farmers of America (NFA), the former organization for African-American agriculture students, before NFA was incorporated in FFA in 1965.

Award recipients were Walter Jones of Pinetops, N.C., agricultural education instructor at Southwest Edgecombe High School; Dr. Ferman Moody of Harrisburg, Pa., state director of vocational-technical education and a former member of the New Farmers of America; and William Sam Combs of Bristow, Okla., who founded an organization called REAP — Retired Educators for Agricultural Programs — to increase participation of African-American youth in agricultural education and FFA.

The National FFA Organization established the H.O. Sargent Award in 1995 to remember the NFA and to recognize its place in the history of the FFA.

The award is open to all people, both FFA and non-FFA, and is sponsored by Merck AgVet Division. Applications are available through the National FFA Organization.

Maryland Plans Pleasure Horse Seminar

The University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Service (UMCES) in Carroll, Baltimore and Howard counties is pleased to announce the program for the 8th Annual Maryland Pleasure Horse Seminar.

This year's seminar includes changes suggested by previous years' participants which include a fourth session that will repeat selected presentations, an expanded trade show and on-farm demonstrations.

The 1996 Maryland Pleasure Horse Seminar will be held on December 14, 1996 at the South Carroll High School, Route 26, Winfield, Md. Participants have the opportunity to choose three different seminars from the nine offered, plus the chance to attend selected repeat seminars or one of the on-farm demonstrations.

The registration desk and commercial exhibit area opens at 8 a.m. Many exhibitors will be on hand to "show and tell" about products and services available to horse owners.

In addition to commercial exhibitors, UMCES will have an Internet Demonstration and Poisonous Plant Exhibit. Seminar sessions begin at 9 a.m. with keynote speaker, Amy W. Mann, Director of Health and Regulatory Affairs, Trails and Recreation Issues, the American Horse Council, discussing "Issues Affecting the National Equine Industry."

Seminar sessions will follow throughout the day and adjourn at 4 p.m. Maryland Cooperative Extension Service programs are open to all citizens without regard to race, sex, handicap, religion, age or national origin.

Seminar choices offer a variety of topics including the following: Current Issues for Maryland Horse Owners: A Panel Discussion moderated by Dr. Malcolm Commer Jr., University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Service. Dr. Kimberly B. Fincher, who is in private practice in Chestertown, MD, will be speaking on Basic Management of the Broodmare and Management of Newborn Foals. Dr. Ginger Rich, Rich Equine Nutritional Consultants, Duluth, GA will discuss Basics on Feeding Your Horse and Prudent Penny Pinching.

Drs. Robin Keyser and Les Vough, University of Maryland Extension Specialists, will provide guidelines for Matching Hay Quality to Nutritional Needs. Dr. Carol Swandby, VMD and Dr. Malcolm Commer, will provide ideas on Basic Equine Health Care Practices and Costs. Today's Fencing Options will be presented by Wayne Harrar, Southern States Cooperative. Ms. Crysfal Brumme, Publisher and Editor of the Equiery magazine and Dr. Malcolm Commer will offer suggestions on Using Advertisements to Buy or Sell a Horse.

Concurrent On-Farm Demonstrations are Wound Care by Dr. Stephen Sears, DVM at VA-MD Regional College of Veterinary Medicine, Essentials in Hoof Care by Mr. Gary Faulkner, President of Maryland Farriers Association, and Fitting Equine Equipment by Mr. Robert Shirley, Extension Agent, Carroll County. These demonstrations require pre-registration and space is limited.

Advanced registration is required. The cost for the entire day including seminar, lunch and materials is only $15 per person (Farm Demonstrations are an additional $10 per person). In addition, day care is available for children ages one to eight for a small fee. To assure your place at this seminar, register before December 6th by contacting the Howard County Cooperative Extension Office at 410-313-2707.

The Maryland Cooperative Extension Service's programs are open to all citizens without regard to race, color, sex, handicap, religion, age or national origin.

Farmers Rally For Reform Of National Cheese Exchange

GREEN BAY, Wis. — Dairy farmers from across the nation rallied outside the National Cheese Exchange (NCE) in Green Bay, Wis., as cheese prices dropped another 9 cents per pound.

It was the sixth consecutive week cheese prices have dropped on the exchange, according to news release from the National Farmers Union.

"What transpired here today is very important," said rally participant Walter Kessler, a dairy producer from Galt, Calif. "I lost 90 bucks per day due to today's drop, which is $2,700 for the month. It wasn't fun watching it."

Kessler, along with television crews from four broadcasting organizations were permitted to watch the trading.

Less than 1 percent of all cheese in the nation is traded at the NCE during one-half hour sessions Friday morning, yet it sets the price for 90 percent of the nation's cheese, which heavily influences producer milk prices.

Producers say the NCE drop is illogical given the fact that the U.S. has 1.3 million fewer cows than it did in 1995. Producers believe and recent studies by the University of Wisconsin indicate that large traders have the ability to manipulate the NCE to their advantage.

Among the approximately 100 producers rallying Friday were members of Farmers Union, the National Farmers Organziation, the National Family Farm Coalition and Farm Bureau. In addition to participation by California milk producers, producer groups from across the nation sent news releases and letters supporting rally organizers.

"Producer organizations from Texas to Minnesota and all points in between are behind this effort to reform the National Cheese Exchange," said Wisconsin Farmers Union president and rally organizer Bill Brey. "Milk producers are united."

Brey added that the issue is one that should concern not only farmers. "Consumers should be asking themselves why they are still paying as much as $3 for a gallon of milk when producer prices have fallen by nearly 35 percent," he said.

National Farmers Union is a general farm organization representing nearly 300,000 family farmers and ranchers nationwide. NFU serves its membership by assisting with education, by providing stimulus and know-how for farmer-owned cooperatives and by presenting the organization's policies to lawmakers at the local, state and national levels.

Districts Appoint Director

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Robert Kaufman, president of the Pennsylvania Association of Conservation Districts (PACD), has announced the appointment of Susan Fox as the association's executive director.

The PACD is a nonprofit organization dedicated to supporting the commonwealth's 66 conservation districts in their efforts to promote the wise use of natural resources. Fox replaces Kurt Leitholf, who accepted a position with the Pennsylvania Department of Conservation and Natural Resources.

Fox recently returned to the United States from Canada where she worked for the past 10 years. She brings more than five years of association experience to the PACD. In Canada, she managed the New Brunswick Hog Marketing Board and the pork producers association. Most recently, she coordinated an export development program for the Canadian Meat Council (the national association of federally inspected meat processors in Canada).

In addition to her association experience, Fox has also worked for the provincial department of agriculture, a management consulting firm and the farm credit banks. Fox has a bachelor of science in agriculture, magna cum laude, from West Virginia University and a master of science in agricultural economics from the University of Tennessee.

U.S. Meat Export Federation Promotes Product Safety

DENVER, Col. — The U.S. Meat Export Federation launched the trade portion of a major safety campaign in Japan recently with the first in a series of meat safety seminars in Tokyo and Osaka.

It was standing room only, said USMEF President and CEO Philip Seng, with more than 200 representatives from leading retail, distribution, food service and processing companies attending each seminar.

"We are responding to a very serious situation in Japan where Japanese consumers are questioning the safety of imported meat," said Send. "Our ultimate goal is to increase their confidence in the safety of our products, so that we can get back to our normal growth pattern in this most important export market. It is absolutely critical that we enlist the Japanese trade in this effort."

An epidemic of bacterial poisoning this summer in Japan has damaged consumer confidence in the safety of a number of food items, including fish, raw vegetables, and imported meat. Although the Japanese government speculates that contaminated radish sprouts were the most likely cause of the initial outbreak, the government has been unable to pinpoint the actual cause for certain.

This uncertainty, Seng explained, has created an anxiety and skepticism among Japanese consumers about the safety of imported meat.

"We need to do more than just say that U.S. meat is safe," said Seng. "This message is important, of course, but there needs to be a positive industry response for consumers to be confident that what they are buying is safe."

According to Seng, other aspects of the meat safety campaign, such as consumer advertising and the public relations work that has been underway for some time, will target consumers directly. The trade portion of the campaign, however, will help to ensure that U.S. meat is as safe when it reaches the consumer as it is when it leaves the manufacturing plant in the United States.

In a recent consumer attitude survey in Japan, 90 percent of those surveyed said that safety was one of the most important factors in deciding what food to buy, second only to freshness. In the same survey, only 14 percent of the respondents were confident that U.S. beef was safe, 51 percent said they were unsure.

In contrast, 88 percent of the respondents believed that beef produced domestically in Japan was safe.

According to Seng, Japanese consumers are switching from imported meats (beef and pork) to meat produced domestically. This shift, he explained, is being encouraged by a nationwide campaign which plays on consumer concerns about imported products, stressing the safety and quality of domestically producted meat.

"There is a tremendous gap between the public's perception and reality when it comes to food safety," said Seng, "and a public health crisis like the one we had this summer in Japan only makes it worse. Japanese companies have to play a more active role in assuring their customers that U.S. meat is safe."

This, according to Seng, means that consumers need to know, first, that U.S. meat is safe when it leaves the United States and, second, that is has been handled properly once it enters the country.

"There are any number of points in any market where product can be contaminated as a result of improper handling or preparation. The implementation of sound food safety management systems in Japan, such as HACCP, is critical, particularly now with all the bacterial testing being done by private companies and government agencies in Japan."

HACCP, or Hazard Analysis and Critical Control Points, is a manufacturing process control system designed specifically to prevent contamination, not just to determine whether it has occurred.

The system is science-based and unique to every sector, company and operation.

The USMEF is working with the Institute of Food Science & Engineering at Texas A&M University and the International Meat and Poultry HACCP Alliance to develop HACCP models for the retail, foodservice and distribution sectors in Japan.

The inititiatve has been well received, with many of the companies attending the recent seminars in Tokyo and Osaka reporting that they planned to develop and implement HACCP programs to improve food safety and help restore consumer confidence (Tokyo participants-58%, Osaka participants-63%). The HACCP-based approach to food safety was recently endorsed by Japan's Ministry of Health and Welfare.

Dr. H. Russell Cross, executive director of the International Meat and Poultry HACCP Alliance, was a key presenter in the meat safety seminars in Japan.

"HACCP is important because it sets priorities and controls potential hazards in food production," he explained. "By controlling food risks — such as microbiological, chemical and physical hazards — the industry can better assure consumers that its products are as safe as good science and technology will allow."

Seng added that a new product liability law that will go into effect next year in Japan will keep food safety issues on the front burner for both U.S. and Japanese companies. It is important, he explained, that Japanese consumers understand what is being done to improve meat safety in Japan.

The USMEF program envisions a food safety or process certification seal will be developed for participating companies. These companies will use this special seal to publicize and promote the extra measures that are being taken to ensure safe meat.

While most in the trade already understand that the United States has the highest standards and the best record in the world when it comes to producing safe meat, stressed Seng, "these seminars are an excellent opportunity for us to reinforce the merits of our meat safety system and the fact that U.S. meat is safe and wholesome."

One-third of the companies attending the USMEF seminars in Tokyo and Osaka said their confidence in the safety of U.S. meat had been raised as a result of the information they received during the seminar.

"The lessons we're learning in Japan will certainly help us in other markets," said Seng. USMEF held a similar meat safety/HACCP awareness seminar later that same week in Seoul, South Korea, where news of the bacterial poisoning in Japan has raised consumer concerns about the safety of imported meat in Korea as well.

Headquartered in Denver, USMEF is a national trade association with responsibility for developing international markets for U.S. red meat products. USMEF has foreign offices in Tokyo, Osaka, Hong Kong, Singapore, Seoul, Taipei, Mexico City and Hamburg, with special representatives covering China, the Middle East, South American, Canada, the former Soviet Union and the Caribbean.

Kids Put Caring Into Action By Helping Kids In Need

These Kids Share The Thanksgiving Spirit Year-Round

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

ANNVILLE (Lebanon Co.) — Kids with cancer, kids with muscular dystrophy . . . these words generally draw sympathetic sighs and feelings of frustration and helplessness from adults, but little action.

In Lebanon County, kids are putting their caring into action by helping kids who face health problems. They call themselves 4-H Kids 4 Kids and are part of the North Mountain 4-H Community Club.

The formation of the club happened almost by chance when Dale and Fran Bushong moved about six miles from their dairy farm. Both the Bushongs had been active in 4-H since they were eight. When their three children were growing up, the whole family got involved in 4-H clubs, the parents as leaders and the kids as members.

Although the six-mile move was still in the county and they could continue to attend the South Lebanon 4-H, it was far enough away that several people suggested the Bushongs start up a 4-H Club in the area known as North Mountain in Lebanon County. No active 4-H club had existed there for 23 years.

The Bushongs decided to throw a hayride to introduce kids to the 4-H program. About 110 kids showed up.

One of the kids was 11-year-old Teresa LaPinto. Shortly after that meeting, Teresa, or Teri, as she is most commonly called, was diagnosed with leukemia.

It was a scary time for the La Pinto family. Teri was admitted to the Hershey Medical Center, where tests, IV's, chemotherapy, and radiation became part of her three-month stay in the hospital.

When Teri returned home, she still could not attend school because she was weak and her immune system "had been knocked out."

The family heard that a computer could really help Teri to make up lost schooling. But the family couldn't afford to buy Teri one because of the huge medical expenses.

When 4-H members heard about Teri needing a computer, they decided they wanted to help. They organized a gingerbread house contest at the mall, held petting zoos at local fairs, and carwashes. They did not charge for these services, but accepted donations for Teri's fund. To their delight, the kids raised $1,000 to buy the computer. They also wrapped up little gifts so that Teri had a new one to open every day for a month. That was two years ago, Teri is now back in school and leading a normal kid's life, and the parents are so grateful to 4-H that they are now 4-H leaders.

The thrill of helping Teri has never been forgotten by her peers It was so rewarding that ever since then 4-H kids have been helping other kids in their community They have raised money for the Four-Diamonds Club, Muscular Dystropy, Multiple Sclerosis, the Ronald McDonald House, Living Gift Fair, and other needs.

The Bushongs head the community 4-H club, which, in addi-

Home Alone Dads

Your wife must go away for a few days on a business trip and you will be "home alone" with three children. Most men detest the notion that they are "babysitting" during their solo parenting stints, but many are uncertain about what exactly their role is and should be during these times.

It is a time to play with the children? (In some families He = fun with the kids while Mom is away and She = caring for the kids and protecting the house from the chaos that children may create.)

Is it a special time because Dad is home? Or, is it time to maintain the regular routine of the family life? It is a time for work on household repairs? Mothers may have their ideas about how fathers should be spending these times. It's important to communicate expectations of Dad's role during these times.

Home alone time is a positive opportunity to build a closer relationship with children. Here are some tips for "Home Alone Dads" from Family Information Services.

- Have minimal expectations for the day - don't expect to get too much done.
- Take a break from each other with a nap or movie.
- Be sensitive to children's pace and give them some sense of control.
- Spend some time doing what the kids want to do.
- Get over playing neatly. Messes are OK.
- Spend some time cleaning up together.
- Share some care with a neighbor.
- Remind yourself that childhood is brief and won't last forever.
- When children are demanding time, be clear with them about when and what you will do with them. (e.g., In ten minutes we can go out and play.)
- Help children clean up instead of getting into a battle.
- Make a plan for the day with your child so that you can both decide what will be fun.
- Have a positive outlook.
- Pace yourself to get through the day.
- Find a support system ... someone to do things with or call if you need to talk to someone.
- Have realistic expectations about what you can accomplish and how children might help.

Life-Giving Alternatives To Holiday Gifts

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — The Lititz Church of the Brethren will host the ninth annual Heifer Project International (HPI) "Living Gift Fair" Nov. 30 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Held the day after Black Friday, the biggest shopping day of the year, the fair provides conscientious Christmas shoppers a relaxing atmosphere in which to purchase life-giving alternative holiday gifts.

Sponsored by HPI and staffed by an ecumenical group of more than 50 volunteers, the fair enables people to deal with two problems at once - holiday shopping and global hunger.

Shoppers purchase animals or shares of animals in the name of a friend. The friend receives an attractive HPI gift card, and a family in need receives the HPI animal that is purchased.

Colorfully decorated tables provide information about how these animals benefit poor families in the U.S. and around the world. Shoppers can choose from a variety of animals, ranging from cows, to yaks, to iquanas, to honeybees.

Those wishing to take something home with them can choose from Discovery Toys, attractive HPI clothing and merchandise, arts and crafts, homemade baked goods, and more. Homemade soups and sandwiches will be on sale for lunch.

Special attractions for children include live llamas (provided by Log Cabin Llamas of Ephrata), balloons, and other planned activities.

A non-profit Christian organization that works in partnership with 13 denominations to provide animals and related services, HPI was founded by Church of the Brethren layman Dan West, whose dream was to give "not a cup, but a cow" - to provide families with a source of food rather than short-term relief.

Since a heifer named Faith sailed to Puerto Rico in 1944, HPI has supplied more than one million families in 110 countries with food and income-producing animals, along with training in animal husbandry; ecologically sound, sustainable farming; and community development.

Today, HPI provides families in 38 countries with 21 different kinds of animals.

A unique feature is the requirement that recipients "pass on the gift" by sharing an offspring of their gift animal with another needy family. Informational videos on HPI will be shown in the dining area over the lunch hour.

For more information, contact Dan Fitzkee at 665-5743.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

A time to be thankful for a bountiful summer and for all of the other blessings that we take for granted.

I've added up the frozen and canned goods that I preserved this summer and found that we have almost 400 quarts. There is quite a variety of fruits and vegetables as there are 39 different kinds frozen. Over the holidays we should have an opportunity to give some to our children when they visit.

When I think of blessings, I think of good health. For the first 20 years of my marriage, I often had to take one or the other of our six children to the doctor. He made no appointments and therefore we often waited for hours. Sometimes the women would say to each other that they should have brought their ironing along. At that time we did a lot of dresses and shirts as clothes were not perma-pressed. My mother told me that she thought everything should be starched before ironing. I remember that she cooked a starch for her clothes.

Nowadays, we make doctor appointments and still wait an hour. Until one gets older, you do not realize how many specialists there are to attend to your needs. One for your skin, one for your lungs, one for your eyes, etc. Yet, we are thankful we have no major affliction.

Thanksgiving is a wonderful time to gather family together for food and fellowship. Children grow up so quickly and due to distance we do not see them often enough.

Kids Put Caring Into Action By Helping Kids In Need

tion to the 4-H Kids for Kids, offers commonly taught projects such as sewing, cake decorating, air rifle, wood working, rocketry, and cooking. The club has 32 leaders and 80 on-going members.

"The club has exceptional parent involvement," said Martha Gregory, 4-H extension agent for the county. "I think it's because the family aspect of 4-H is emphasized and the set expectation of parental involvement."

Most of these members and adults also are members of the 4-H Kids 4 Kids.

The impetus behind all this activity seems to be the Bushongs although they shy away from taking the credit.

"The parents (leaders) really give of themselves and the kids are just amazing," said Fran. "Leaders mold and help the kids set goals, but the most important part is that they bring out the best in each kid."

"Fran is a high energy volunteer and a hard worker," Gregory said. "Her enthusiasm for the 4-H program helps others to see the benefits and become involved."

Fran said that she gets many of her ideas for the club while milking 120 cows daily. She keeps a pen and tablet by her side during her chores so that she can jot down whatever ideas come to her. It's during milking time that Fran prays, sets priorities, and receives inspiration.

From the formation of the club, Fran stressed the importance and meaning of the 4-H motto. She didn't want the members to merely repeat the motto by rote but think of creative ways to put it into practice. The motto refers to pledging to use head, heart, hand, and health. Fran emphasizes the need to put "heart" into club projects.

She said, "This is an awesome club to lead. The kids are so neat. They keep pushing me and thinking up ideas."

To raise money, club members continue to hold petting zoos, carwashes, serve as coat checkers during Farm-City week, hold a rock-a-thon, and other special events.

The benefits of holding petting zoos are not all monetary. "We don't accept money from nursing homes, but we take our animals into them on a regular basis. When you plop a rabbit on a table in front of a 100-year-old who hasn't smiled in weeks and watch them come alive as they touch the rabbit—nothing can repay you more than that," Fran said.

The 4-H'ers were asked to hold a petting zoo for Camp Can Do, which is a camp held for cancer kids. The 4-H'ers did it as a project and refused payment, but the American Cancer Society sent them a $100 check, which the 4-H'ers donated back to cancer patients through the 4-Diamonds Fund.

The 4-H Kids 4 Kids aren't always working. They like to do lots of family activities and hold pizza, roller skating, and bowling parties, and Christmas caroling at CandyLane held at Hershey Park.

Money for the fun things come from doing a good job with the assigned projects. For instance, 4-H'ers hold an annual hoagie and cookie sale. The South Mountain Club sold more cookies than any other club. A portion of that money is designated to be used for fun projects.

Fran said, "The neat thing about the club is that we have several members who are handicapped. The kids all accept each other so well. They find a way to communicate to the deaf child. They take the time to push a wheelchair and help a slower child.

"I hope and pray my grandchildren will become members of 4-H," said Fran, who is pleased that her own children, Matt, Melanie, and Michele serve as leaders after returning from college.

"Kids involved in 4-H projects build memories, self-esteem, cultivate relations, and learn to use their best to make things better," Fran said.

"While they are helping others, they are also helping themselves. If we can make a difference in one child's life by keeping them off the streets, then it's worth it," Fran said of the hours of work put into the program.

This past year, North Mountain 4-H was pleased to have won both scrapbook and community service awards.

"The club has done a good job of prioritizing community service as a focus for their community club," Gregory said. "The club sets an example for other clubs."

While the North Mountain Club is filled to capacity, Lebanon County has 27 clubs, which eagerly accept volunteers and members. For more information, call Gregory at the extension office (717) 270-4391 or call your county Penn State Cooperative Extension Office for information on 4-H.

After two years of chemotherapy for leukemia, 14-year-old Teresa, left, lives a normal teen-ager's life. The family has never forgotten how 4-H'ers raised $1,000 so that Teresa could purchase a computer to help with her schooling. Now the whole family is involved in 4-H. Her mother, Anne, teaches cooking; her dad Edward teaches small engines, and Teresa and her brother Edward participate in many of the 4-H projects.

The success of the 4-H program is due to community involvement. These balloons were donated by a local business for the 4-H'ers participation in the Memorial Day Parade.

A nursing home patient hugs a llama at one of the petting zoos held by 4-H'ers.

Michelle Blauch rocks the night away. Through the Rock-a-Thon, club members raised $1,500 to help kids in need.

Members of the North Mountain 4-H Community Club also participate in projects such as this Project Pals, which teaches pet care.

Thanksgiving Bounty

Although Thanksgiving is strictly an American tradition, it was not until 1863 that the day became a special one for all Americans. Up until this time, the holiday was primarily celebrated in New England and the West.

Through the lobbying efforts of Sarah Josepha Hale, President Abraham Lincoln in 1863 declared the last Thursday of November as a day of thanks.

Hale was an unusual woman for her time in that she was well-educated, a sharp business woman, a creative writer, an abolitionist, an woman's advocate, and most notably the editor of Godey's Lady's Book, the foremost women's magazine in America in the 19th century.

It was through her editorials and numerous letters to public officials that she finally succeeded in having Thanksgiving declared a national holiday.

Hale believed that the best time for Thanksgiving was the last Thursday in November since "the agricultural labors of the year are generally completed."

In addition, she saw the holiday as a time for charitable giving, gratitude to God and advancement of the cause of peace. She encouraged her women readers to "Speak to your spouses, and be not afraid to let them know your feelings on this matter. If they are just in their judgment, they will most certainly write to the men they have elected to political power and persuade them to allow this day of prayer and thanksgiving."

In 1863 she issued her final appeal that convinced President Lincoln to issue the proclamation on Oct. 3, 1863:

"Would it not be a great advantage, socially, nationally, religiously, to have the day of our American Thanksgiving positively settled? Putting aside the sectional feelings and local incidents that might be urged by an single State or isolated Territory that desired to choose its own time, would it not be more noble, more truly American, to become national in unity when we offer to God our tribute of job and gratitude for the blessings of the year?"

With these blessings in mind and the woman who put Thanksgiving on the national calendar, we once again begin our dinner preparations by perusing various cookbooks for new menu ideas. Maybe one of the Lancaster Farming contributions will help with the tradition.

ORANGE GLAZED SWEET POTATOES WITH CRUNCHY NUT TOPPING

4 medium sweet potatoes (about 2 to 2¼ lbs.), peeled, cut into ¼ " slices
6 tablespoons unsalted butter
½ cup orange juice
¼ cup firmly packed light brown sugar
¼ cup maple syrup or honey
¼ cup chopped pecans
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg

Crunchy Nut Topping

⅓ cup uncooked rolled oats
¼ cup light brown sugar
2 tablespoons cold, unsalted butter, cut into small pieces
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Bring a large pot of lightly salted water to boil. Add potatoes; return to boil. Cook until potatoes are almost tender but still keep their shape, about 5 minutes. Drain well. Arrange potatoes in overlapping pattern in buttered shallow 2-quart baking dish.

In medium saucepan, combine butter, orange juice, brown sugar, maple syrup, grated orange and spices. Heat to boil, stirring until smooth. Reduce heat and cook over medium heat until slightly thickenede, 5 minutes. Drizzle sauce over sweet potatoes.

For topping, combine all ingredients in small bowl. Work butter into mixture until crumbly. Sprinkle over top of potatoes. Bake uncovered until potatoes are tender and topping is crispy, about 30 minutes. Makes 8 servings.

American Dairy Association

ROAST TURKEY SUPREME

12-pound turkey
butter or oil
2 teaspoons Season-All
½ teaspoon poultry seasoning
½ teaspoon dry mustard
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg

Clean and rinse cavity and outside of turkey; wipe dry. If desired, lightly fill neck and body and body cavities with stuffing. Place turkey on rack in shallow oven pan. Rub butter or oil over entire surface of bird. Combine seasonings and rub inside and outside of turkey. Cover with loose tent of heavy-duty aluminum foil. Remove foil during last 30 minutes of cooking. Roast 325 degrees 4-5 hours or until meat thermometer registers 180 degrees. Let stand 15 minutes before carving.

The turkey is, without question, the main attraction to the holiday meal. In keeping with tradition, bread stuffing, vegetables, cranberry salad, rolls, and cookies satisfy the expectations of family and friends.

CHUCKWAGON CARROTS

3 cups sliced carrots
¼ cup cooked crumbled bacon
3 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon packed brown sugar
2 tablespoons thinly sliced green onion
¼ teaspoon salt
pinch pepper

Cook carrots in 2 quart saucepan until crisply tender. Drain and return carrots to pan. Add all the remaining ingredients and cook over medium heat, stirring frequently until heated through, about 6 minutes.

SLIM PUMPKIN PIE

¼ to 1 cup graham crackers
3 tablespoons reduced fat softened or liquid margarine

Use an 8 or 9-inch non-stick pie pan or spray and 8-inch round springform pan. Blend crumbs and margarine thoroughly with fork. Press mixture firmly and evenly into the pan and bake 5 minutes in a preheat 400 degree oven. Cool before filling.

16 ounce can solid pack pumpkin
½ cup egg substitute (equals 2 whole eggs)
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1¼ cup evaporated skim milk
⅓ cup honey
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon cloves
¼ teaspoon ginger
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon salt (optional)

Beat together pumpkin, egg substitute, cornstarch and spices, salt. Add evaporated skim milk and honey and blend. Pour into prepared pie shell. Bake 350 60-65 minutes or until filling tests done (table knife inserted just off-center comes out clean). Cool on rack. Turkey Carving Tips

(NAPS)—The secret to masterfully carving the holiday turkey is knowing six tricks used by professional chefs.

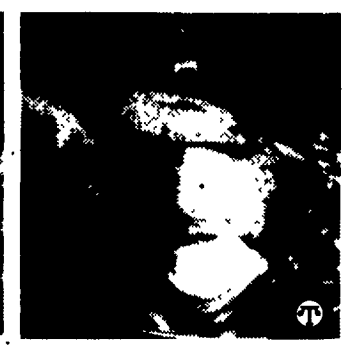
1. COOK: Roast the turkey until a meat thermometer inserted into the thickest part of the thigh reads 180 degrees.

2. COOL: Remove the turkey from the oven and let cool for 10 to 15 minutes. This makes the meat firmer and easier to slice.

3. SHARPEN: While the turkey is cooling sharpen your carving knife. Cutting beautiful slices depends most of all on using a good, sharp knife. Dull knives tend to tear tender meat, producing shreds instead of whole slices. The easiest sharpeners to use have built-in angle guides that take the guesswork out of sharpening and 100-percent diamond abrasives which are safe for quality knives and sharpen more quickly and efficiently than conventional harsh abrasives (which can take off too much metal and detemper (overheat) quality knives)

4. CUT: Remove the drumsticks and thighs. Next remove only the tip and center sections of the wings. Leaving the last section of both wings provides a good, broad base to help prevent the bird from tilting when you slice the breast.

5. SLICE HORIZONTALLY: When carving a turkey breast, start by making a deep horizontal (parallel to the platter) "base cut" into the breast, just above the wing bone.



6. SLICE VERTICALLY: Release uniform, even slices by cutting in a vertical direction down through the breast to the base cut.

Who Gets Grandma's Yellow Pie Plate?

My grandmother died in April and since then my mom and her siblings have been busy cleaning, sorting, dividing, and delivery household items. It's been an experience! Given the circumstances, I think everyone is doing fairly well. Thank goodness we're all still friends.

But dividing up a person's assets can be very stressful. Dividing financial inheritance is one thing, but distributing the other items — the yellow pie plate, the handmade quilt, the antique lamp — the belongings that have immeasureable emotional worth is the part that requires planning and compassion. Unfortunately, some families don't fair as well as ours has.

Families who are settling an estate can follow a six-step process to reduce the associated friction that may occur. Begin by realizig that "fair" distribution is nearly impossible for non-titled assets like dishes, furniture, family photos, etc. First make sure everyone that should be involved is — where do spouses, siblings, life-long companions fit in? As a group, talk about any sensitive issues regarding previous distributions or assumptions about the pending task.

Secondly, decide what the family hopes to accomplish. Is the top goal to preserve memories, to maintain family ties, to keep discussion about the property private, to contribute to society, or to be "fair?" Depending on the goals, each family will select a slightly different plan.

The third step is to agree on what would be "fair." Is it receiving the same number of items? The same dollar value of items? Having each person get at least one "most important" selection? Having an equal chance to "purchase" items? Getting back things you gave? Receiving items according to financial/physical/emotional need? Studies record that more conflict occurred when the distribution system was based on birth order, gender, marital status, or close geographic location. People were more comfortable with plans that took pesonal interests into account.

Once a family has determined what is "fair," advisers encourage the members to take time to share stories. "What memories does this piece hold for you?" "Why do you have an attachment to it?" "Which pieces would you long for most?" Believe it or not, in our family, three people ranked a "stone pig" (a stoneware container that, when filled with hot water, was used to warm up chilly beds) as their most-longed-for-item. Why? Because as youngsters, we had spent wonderful Thanksgiving vacations snuggled up in toasty beds at Grandma's house thanks to the "pig."

After the storytelling, people being to realize that several members may have attachments (of different intensities) to the same pieces. Now it's time to begin the dividing. There is no one perfect method! Discuss the pros and cons of different systems. Remember to select a process that respects individual sensitivities and that accomplishes families goals.

Finally, agree from the outset to manage and discuss conflicts as they occur. Don't allow grudges to fester. Disbursing a lifetime of belongings and memories is a difficult, emotional one, but when handled with careful planning, it can achieve a reasonable, lasting result.

Because in some families the property distribution experience has been painful, some senior citizens avoid addressing the issue. Actually, some of the best things to ease the process can be done while people are still living! When possible, encourage an owner to write down his/her preferences. Don't tape pieces of paper to items (tape dries up and falls off). Tagging items may not work well — they can be switched or lost. Simply write your choices for recipients of your belongings in letter form. Ask people (maybe this week over Thanksgiving dinner), "What would you like to receive from our house?"

Also share with them the items you had pictured giving them. You may be surprised that what a person wants most is not what you had intended to give.

If you are willing, distribution of the "yellow pie plate" or the "stone pig" is much more easily done (and less contested) when you are alive and you are making the handouts. Granted, it does take time and energy.

Finally, if at some point, an older relative or friend gives you a treasured item from their life/home, instead of saying "Oh no, you keep it for awhile more," say "Thank you, I will treasure it and think of you often."

QUESTION — Mary Reed of Duncannon, Pa., is looking for a recipe for caramel custard pie.

QUESTION — Lucy Lowe of Claymont, Delaware, is looking for a recipe for lemon impossible pie.

QUESTION — A reader is looking for recipes or a cookbook of Jello flavored gelatins.

QUESTION — Donna Fite of Peach Bottom is looking for a recipe for a peanut butter sauce for ice-cream. She is also looking for an old-fashioned lemon pie with a criss-cross crust. Does anyone have a recipe?

QUESTION — Mary Shank, York, would like a recipe for spice cake that calls for pepper (the special ingredient that makes it so good). She believes it also calls for buttermilk. The recipe is approximately 35 years old and she can't find it anywhere.

QUESTION — A reader wants to know how to can applesauce.

QUESTION — Sally Snyder, Rebuck, would like a recipe for caramel apple dip similar to the brand T. Marzettis. It has a sweetened condensed milk base.

QUESTION — Mrs. David Weidenhammer, Bernville, would like recipes or hints for preparing goat meat (Chevon). Can it be canned? Do you prepare it as beef?

QUESTION — Phyllis Stauffer of Carlisle would like recipes for breads that are often sold at bake shops or orchard stands. One she particularly likes is vegetable bread. It looks crumbly on top and is a softer bread.

QUESTION — Sandy Gutshall of Harrisburg writes that her non-profit group is interested in making apple butter and applesauce in the large open kettle. She'd like to know the ingredients and the time and people it takes.

QUESTION — Isabel Shafer, Liverpool, would like the recipe for the lettuce dressing used at the Vicksburg Community supper. The lettuce dressing has bacon and milk in it and is poured over cold lettuce.

QUESTION — Margie Hartman of Pittsburgh would like to know if anyone has a recipe for New Year's Pretzel.

QUESTION — Loris Crone, Dover, would like a recipe for kiwi jam or jelly or recipes such as kiwi-strawberry or banana combinations.

QUESTION — Cel Brown of West Chester wants the recipe for a bread mix like the ones in the store called Daily Bread Company's. These mixes can be made up ahead.

QUESTION — J. Jackson, Huntingdon, would like a recipe for a Lebanese cookie called Mammoul (she isn't sure of the spelling). The cookies contain pistachio nuts and are a high rising cookie. A neighbor made these when Ms. Jackson was a child.

QUESTION — Thomas Martin, Strasburg, writes that he is looking for a recipe for frozen strawberry yogurt, which combines yogurt and strawberry Jell-O.

QUESTION — Chloe Zemek, Johnson City, N.Y., wants a recipe for apple brandy jelly.

QUESTION — A faithful New York reader would like a recipe for grilled chicken breast that tastes like that served by Shady Maple on Thursdays.

QUESTION — Shirley Lilley, Baltimore, Md., would like a recipe for gingerbread square cupcakes and frosting (a dollop on top of each) such as marketed by Valley Pride Bakery each fall season and sold in the Chambersburg area.

PUMPKIN TORTE

2 cups graham cracker crumbs
⅓ cup sugar
½ cup butter
2 eggs, beaten
¾ cup sugar
8 ounces cream cheese
2 cups pumpkin
3 egg yolks
½ cup sugar
½ cup milk ½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon cinnamon
1 tablespoon plain gelatin
¼ cup cold water
3 egg white
¼ cup sugar
8 ounces refrigerated whipped topping

Mix and press first three ingredients into 9X13 inch pan. Mix next three ingredients together and pour over graham crackers. Bake 350 degrees for 20 minutes. Cook pumpkin, egg yolks, ½ cup sugar, milk, salt, and cinnamon until mixture thickens. Remove from heat and add gelatin (dissolved in cold water). Cool. Beat egg whites, ¼ cup sugar, and fold into pumpkin mixture. Pour over cooled, baked crust. Top with whipped topping.

BAKED LIMA BEANS

1 lb. dry lima beans
½ lb. bacon
½ cup onion, minced
¾ cup celery, chopped
¼ cup sweet molasses
½ cup brown sugar
½ cup ketchup
1½ teaspoons dry mustard
1½ teaspoons salt
1½ cups tomato juice
1½ teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
¼ teaspoon pepper

Wash beans several times. Soak overnight, making sure they are well covered with water.

Parboil beans in the water in which they were soaked, adding additional water if necessary. Do not allow beans to become too soft.

Fry bacon until crisp. Drain on paper towels. Break bacon into small pieces.

Cook onions and celery in bacon drippings until onions become transparent.

Mix together all ingredients, saving some bacon for a garnish on top. Bake 350 degrees for 1½ hours or more, until beans are tender.

QUESTION — Yvonne Musser, Lancaster, said she would like a recipe for buttermilk salad like they serve at Akron Restaurant in Akron.

Silver White Cake

2¼ cups sifted cake flour
1½ cups sugar
3½ teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup shortening
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon flavoring (vanilla or almond)
4 or 5 egg whites (stiffly beaten)

Sift together first four ingredients into bowl. Add shortening, milk, and vanilla. Beat 2 minutes, using an electric mixer at medium speed. Add egg whites. Beat 2 minutes more.

Pour batter into greased 13X9X2 pan or 2 8" layers. Bake 350 degrees, starting to test for doneness after 20 minutes. Use the toothpick test.

ANSWER — Nancy Landis, Dimick, was looking for a source to buy blackberry juice, raspberry juice, and other juices for making jelly. Marjorie Doland of State Hill, N.Y., says that in her area Agway has frozen food sales of blackberries, raspberries, blueberries, strawberries from the which the juice can be extracted. The Ephrata Agway dealer is Henry B. Hoover, Inc., 1731 W. Main St., Ephrata, phone 717-733-6593.

ANSWER — A reader would like recipes for biscuits like those served at Hardee's Kentucky Fried Chicken, and McDonalds. Pat Gowen of Amherst, Virginia, provides this recipe for Hardee's biscuits.

Hardee's Biscuits

4 cups self-rising flour
¾ cup shortening
2 tablespoons baking powder
2 tablespoons sugar
2 cups buttermilk

Combine flour and baking powder. Cut in shortening. Stir in the sugar and add buttermilk. Stir until dough sticks together. Roll out ½ inch thick on well-floured board. Cut out and bake in preheated 425 degree oven for 10 minutes.

ANSWER — Michele Powlison of Millerton was looking for a recipe for a creamy cheesecake without a crust. Thanks to Millie Landis of Lancaster here is one:

No-crust Creamy Cheesecake

4 8-ounce packages cream cheese, softened
6 eggs
1½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon almond extract
1 pint sour cream mixed with 3 tablespoons sugar and 1 tablespoon vanilla.

Beat cream cheese until smooth and creamy. Add eggs one at a time, beating well after each addition. Thoroughly blend in sugar and almond extract. Pour into lightly greased springform pan. Bake 325 degrees for 60-65 minutes. Set aside to cool, 20 minutes. Spread with sour cream mixture, put in oven for 15 more minutes. Cool and refrigerate.

MASHED POTATO CASSEROLE

5 pounds potatoes
6 oz. cream cheese
1 cup sour cream
1½ teaspoons salt
pepper and onion to taste

Cook, drain and mash potatoes. Add other ingredients and put in greased 3 quart casserole. Top with a little butter and bake 350 degrees for about 45 minutes. May be refrigerated 2 weeks or frozen. 10 to 12 servings.

SQUASH-APPLE BAKE

1 medium (about 1¼ pounds) buttercup or butternut squash, peeled, cut into ¾ inch slices
2 apples, peeled, cored, cut in wedges
½ cup brown sugar
1 tablespoon flour
¼ cup butter, melted
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon mace
¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon

Arrange squash in a 12X8 inch baking pan. Top with apple wedges. Combine remaining ingredients; spoon over apples. Bake 350 degrees for 50-60 minutes or until tender. 4-6 servings.

BAKED CORN

2 cups cooked or canned corn
⅔ cup cracker or bread crumbs
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon sugar
2 eggs
2 teaspoons onion, chopped
1 cup milk
3 tablespoons butter, melted

Put all ingredients in blender except butter and blend. Pour into greased baking dish. Pour butter over top. Bake 350 for 40 minutes.

POTATO BREAD FILLING

1 stick butter
1 cup celery chopped fine
1 medium onion, chopped fine
1 quart mashed potatoes
6 eggs, beaten
salt, to taste
pepper, to taste
pinch saffron
½ cup boiling water
2 small loaves bread, cubed

Cook celery and onion in butter for 15 minutes on low heat. Beat potatoes and eggs. Dissolve saffron in ½ cup boiling water. Mix all ingredients leaving the bread cubes until last and fold them in before putting in a buttered casserole dish. Bake 300 degrees until heated through. 12 servings.

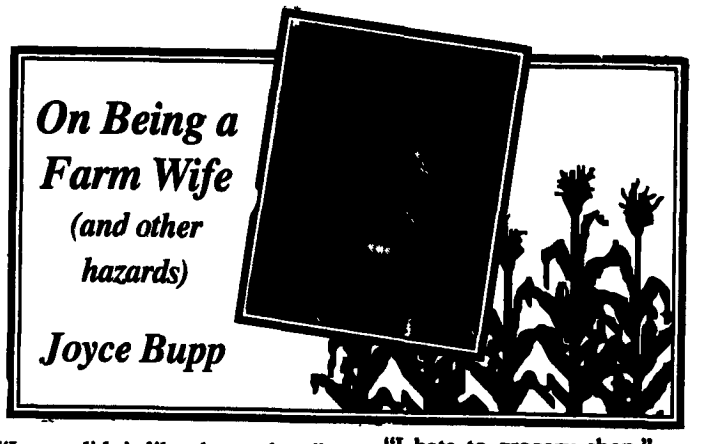
GINGER GLAZED CARROTS

2 tablespoons butter
¾ cup water
1 lb. whole baby carrots
¼ cup honey
2 tablespoons orange juice
1 teaspoon ground ginger
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
½ teaspoon parsley flakes

Place 1 tablespoon butter and water in skillet. Add carrots, cover, cook over medium heat 6-8 minutes or until crisp tender. Drain off liquid. Combine next 4 ingredients. Pour over carrots, add remaining 1 tablespoon butter. Cook uncovered 5-6 minutes over medium heat. Stir frequently to glaze carrots. Sprinkle with parsley just before serving.



"I sure didn't like that turkey."

This from a fellow meeting-attendee in a distant state, who had shared with several dozen of us a hot buffet luncheon featuring turkey and ham as the meats. Both were of the boneless, "pressed" type, heated and served in typical institution, large stainless pan over heated water on a decorated buffet table. Potatoes and a winter vegetable medley - broccoli, cauliflower, zucchini, carrots, etc. - rounded out the entree. And the desserts featured a personal favorite - chocolate.

My mom raised no "finicky" eaters. If you didn't like what was on the table, you had a couple of options. Butter bread was one. Going hungry was the other.

Frankly, if I don't have to cook it ... serve it ... and clean it up afterward, I like just about anything.

So, alright already, what's wrong with the turkey?

"Well, it was that pressed stuff. I like real turkey."

Real turkey? This was fiberboard or something? I changed the subject. It was safer. Because people who are so "picky" about their food irritate me. They're spoiled.

Here's another one that irritates me.

"I hate to grocery shop."

Well, grocery shopping certainly doesn't always fit into my schedule, and there are lots more "fun" things to do, like putter around the yard or the garden, read a book, watch birds. (But, we save blue jeans mending for the "hate to do" list around here.)

We are picky. We hate to shop for food.

We have had so much ... for so long ... that we are soooo spoiled.

As it does on a far-too regular basis, the prospect of starvation once again raises its ugly head in troubled spots around the world and assaults our sense in daily doses of news media.

This ethnic group in this spot in the world killing off that ethnic group trying to share its space. This political group trying to wrench control from that political group over some area's governmental affairs. This dictator waging war against that dictator in an endless struggle of power and egos.

And those who suffer are the young, the old, the sick, the poor. The hungry.

Meanwhile, we lament the problems caused by the full bellies of our prosperity. We complain about waiting in the checkout lines and the dueling carts of shoppers headed the other direction in our aisles.

We fret over which of dozens of sorts of meats and poultry products to choose from, hassle over which of chilled and mist-freshened fruits and vegetables to select, what kinds of the six or eight varieties of milk and array of juices to plunk in our carts. We load up with nutritionless junk foods for ourselves and pet food for the critters — that probably has more real food value.

We bellyache about how "expensive" food is and then turn around and brag about how much our new motorcycle or four-by-four vehicle or satellite dish or big-screen TV blew our budget to bits.

Once again, this week, we Americans celebrate Thanksgiving. We will remember and return thanks for the bounty under which this nation's table groans. And, hopefully, we'll recognize and be grateful for how little effort it takes most of us to partake in it.

And, if we're served "pressed" turkey, or "pressed" ham, or even just a hot dog, for Thanksgiving, we need to remember to be appreciative.

For, had Fate placed us elsewhere in the world, we could instead be battling over a bite of stale bread.

See German Farm Christmas Portrayal

LANDISVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Preparations for the Christmas holiday on a Pennsylvania German farm in the late 1800s were vastly different from the Victorian customs of the era which have been immortalized in art, literature, and song. Visitors to the sixth annual Christmas Tour at the Amos Herr Homestead, Landisville, on November 30 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on December 1 from noon to 5 p.m. will experience this difference first hand.

Whereas, in past years, the 10-room farmhouse, was decked in a portrayal of the most elaborate Victorian decorating customs of the day, this year's offering marks a return to the roots and lifestyle of the family that occupied this land for 133 years.

Founded in 1990, the Amos Herr House Foundation, spent its first five years renovating the 1852 farmhouse. In the summer of 1996, the entire homestead, house and barns, were deemed eligible for the National Register of Historic Places under the designation of a Pennsylvania German farm.

This designation, along with the plans to prepare the C. 1830 barn for tours in 1997, was the determining factor for the theme of this year's Christmas portrayal. The first stop for visitors will be the barn yard, stable, and carriage shed where they will begin their visit much as they would have over 100 years ago. Here they will meet and talk with farm hands, view displays of farm tools and machinery from times past, and taste and see the harvest of the fields.

The farmhouse will literally be bursting at the seams with activity, as children, visiting relatives, and the women of the house prepare for Christmas Day. Since the Christmas Day meal was the highlight and often the only form of holiday entertaining on the Pennsylvania German farm, the kitchen will present an authentic portrayal of the hustle and bustle of the day before Christmas. Tour goers will be able to sample the old fashioned molasses cookies and peppernuts being baked by costumed reenactors.

The Herr Foundation has kept the decorations throughout the farmhouse as close as possible to what a non-Plain family would have used in the late 1800s. A special feature is the Pennsylvania German tradition of using a sassafras tree which they wrapped with cotton and then hung simple ornaments from the branches. The parlor tree will be a cedar tree, which used to be prevalent in the meadows and fence rows of early Lancaster County farms.

Perhaps nothing so characterizes a 19th century Lancaster County Christmas as the sights and smells of the traditional foods being prepared over a wood burning cook stove. Walnut taffy, snitz pies, clear toy candies, black walnut cakes, dried corn, and many more delicacies are all a visual part of this authentic portrayal of early farm life.

The Keeping Room gift shop will be open in the cellar area for shopping while visitors enjoy complimentary cider and pretzels. Admission is $5 for adults, children under 12 free, students $1.

Visitors are reminded to wear comfortable shoes for touring. For additional information call (717) 898-8522 or (717) 394-5882.

Despite Leg Loss, Ben Keeps Farming

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md. — From the farm where 11-year-old Ben Keyes lives, you can see the waters where the Susquehanna River meets the Chesapeake Bay.

Ben's family operates Mt. Felix Dairy Farm, on the edge of the town of Havre de Grace. The Keyes family includes his parents, David and Kelly, and his nine-year-old sister, Megan.

Like most farm kids, Ben enjoys helping to milk and care for their 90 Holstein dairy cows and their calves and working with his dad at farm chores, including his very favorite, driving a tractor. He also enjoys sports, especially soccer.

One thing Ben does do differently than most farm kids is to take crutches along when he goes to the barn. That's because a few months ago, part of Ben's left leg was amputated, or removed by surgery, after he got bone cancer.

While playing soccer at school early last September, Ben fell and hit his knee against the wall of the Meadowvale Elementary School gym, where he was in fifth grade. His knee became very sore and after several weeks, developed a large growth, or tumor.

On December 1, Ben's doctor took X-rays of his knee and told his family that Ben had cancer. Three days later, on his dad's birthday, Ben went to Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore for more tests.

"The doctor said I had to use a cane to walk because he didn't want me to fall and break a bone, which might make my cancer spread," Ben says. Ben used the cane a little bit but decided that crutches were more "cool."

Because of the danger of injury in school activities, Ben stopped attending school and is doing all his classwork at home. His mother is his teacher and she does make him do homework.

Before they knew about his cancer, Ben's parents had orderd a John Deere Gator, a 6-wheeled vehicle, that was to be a surprise for Christmas. The Gator was delivered one day while Ben was at the barn with his dad, after his cancer had been found. It turned out to be the perfect "farm truck" for Ben, who was no longer allowed to ride his bike around the farm.

The day after Christmas, Ben began chemotherapy, or chemical treatment to destroy the cancer cells. A reaction to Ben's treatments caused him to develop a fever and his parents had to rush him to the hospital in the middle of last January's heavy blizzard.

After a series of treatments, Ben had surgery on his knee. His doctors replaced his knee and part of his leg bone with artificial replacements. But his cancer spread; and in June, Ben's doctors told him they would have to remove his leg above the knee. "It was scary," he sayd.

After his leg surgery, Ben's doctors fitted him with an artificial leg. He returns to Hopkins every few days for blood testing and physical therapy.

After he has his schoolwork finished, Ben spends some of his time helping his dad and likes to ride with him to go for equipment parts. He also enjoys having friends visit and spend time playing around the farm with him. Ben has figured out how to play soccer on his crutches and usually beats the rest of his family when they go to play miniature golf. Wherever Ben goes, "Bailey," his chocolate Labrador Retriever, will be right beside him. Bailey especially likes to ride with Ben on the Gator.

Ben is a Baltimore Orioles baseball fan. In May, the Grant-A-Wish organization arranged for his whole family to be special guests at an Orioles game at Camden Yards Stadium. During their visit, they were taken onto the field and also spent time with Orioles player Cal Ripken, Jr.

"He was nice," Ben says of the well-known ball player. And just recently, Ben received from Cal Ripken an autographed Louisville-Slugger baseball bat. It came in the protective covering of a long, white tube sock, which Ben jokes might have been one of Ripken's.

Ben and Megan are both in 4-H and show their dairy heifers at the Harford County Fair. Last year, he was the junior champion winner in fitting and showmanship classes. He owns several cows and calves in the Mt. Felix herd.

Two years ago, Ben also began showing pigs in 4-H. He named his two Hampshire pigs for this year's project Tom and Nancy, after two of his doctors at Hopkins. Doctors Tom and Nancy thought it was neat to have 4-H pigs named for them. A friend showed Ben's pigs for him at the fair this year and Tom (the pig) won a giant trophy for having the best daily weight gain. Nancy also did well in her showing class.

At the livestock auction held at the Harford Fair, so many people bid on Tom that he finally brought $26 per pound, or nearly $6,000. And then the construction company owner who bought Tom gave him back. Many of the other 4-H members also donated part of the sale of their animals toward the very expensive cost of Ben's cancer treatments and the nine surgeries he has had in the last year.

Ben very much enjoys receiving cards and hearing from other kids (and adults, too). If you would like to send Ben a card, mail to to Ben Keyes, 2028 Level Road, Havre De Grace, MD 21078.

Ben and Megan like to play with the Holstein calves. Both own several of their own animals for 4-H projects.

York Farm Women Celebrate Hospitality, Friends

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — In what has become a tradition of the past several years, members of the York County Society of Farm Women celebrated their annual meeting with an outpouring of support for those less fortunate around the community.

Funds from the Farm Women's annual charitable fundraiser raised about $2,400, split among three York County charitable organizations. Checks for $790 each were presented to York White Rose Hospice, New Life for Girls, and New Life for Children.

The check presentations were a highlight of the Society's county convention, held November 7 at Wisehaven Hall, with a theme of "Hospitality and Friends."

Helping to fulfill that theme, members continued another tradition of filling a long row of tables inside the hall's entrance with donations of dry and canned foodstuffs and non-perishable household supplies. Those products were later packed and delivered by a committee of Farm Women members to southern York County's Mason-Dixon Food Bank, and New Hope Ministries, serving the Dover and Dillsburg areas of northern York County.

The more than 200 Farm Women attending the convention were not quite sure what to expect when their morning program guest, The Bag Lady, came hobbling up the center aisle on crutches.

Rita McGinty, an actress, first played a bag lady in a theatrical production. She was so taken with the character that she saved costuming and props and eventually was led to begin presenting a humorous-spiritual program on the homeless. Her jokes, quips, mini-skits and collection of outrageous hats — which she plunks on the heads of audience members — are interspersed with sobering facts about the nation's homeless. It was her 181st performance and she donates all proceeds to the Interfaith Family Shelter, a Harrisburg center for the homeless.

Before she was through, The Bag Lady had the Farm Women howling with laughter, several of them parading around the room decked out in her hats and ultimately on their feet for standing ovation.

In another tradition for the York Farm Women's unusual meeting, a candle lighting ceremony memorialized members who had died since the 1995 convention.

York County Dairy Princess Tanya Thoman, Dallastown, and Dairy Miss Heather Crowl, Airville, spoke with the Farm Women about milk and good nutrition, using a cow puppet and poster. Afternoon entertainment was a musical program by The Eppeihmers.

During the business meeting, Hester Hemminger, Glen Rock, was elected county Farm Women treasurer. She replaced retirig treasurer Treva Stiles. Other officers are Arlene Keener, president; Lois Manifold, 1st vice president; Sandy Hilty, 2nd vice president; and Delores Sutton, secretary.

Checks to three York community organizations were the fruits of the Farm Women's annual charitable fundraiser. President Arlene Keener presented $790 checks to Karen Porter, representing the York White Rose Hospice and Jose Pachero, accepting for New Life for Girls. A third check was donated to New Life for Children.

Wearing The Bag Lady's collection of outrageous and colorful hats, several Farm Women were "volunteered" from the audience for a chorus and hat parade.

Woman Develops Chocolates With Pizazz

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

MARIETTA (Lancaster Co.) — While five pounds of chocolate warms, Lois Ann Littlehale confesses, "I'm not a big chocolate lover, but when I eat it, I want it to be good."

"Good" doesn't sufficiently describe Lois Ann's raspberry truffles and chocolates that melt in your mouth.

Not satisfied with ordinary factory-made chocolates, Lois Ann spent several years researching and experimenting with fine chocolates before she launched her own business, Old Colebrook Sweets and Treats.

"Chocolates that taste as good as this are hard to find," she said as she arranged an assortment of the homemade chocolates in a box.

Although the trend has been toward cutting fat in diets, Lois Ann is convinced that there will always be a market for fine chocolates.

"People don't want to eat empty calories. They are becoming more select about what they eat. A small piece of my chocolate is more satisfying than eating a whole candy bar," she said.

She uses the finest combination of cocoa chocolate that she buys from a chocolate factory and then tempers.

Tempering chocolate is achieved by heating and cooling chocolate to specific temperatures, causing cocoa butter crystal formation so the the chocolate coating will stay firm and glossy without wax or refrigeration of the coated candy.

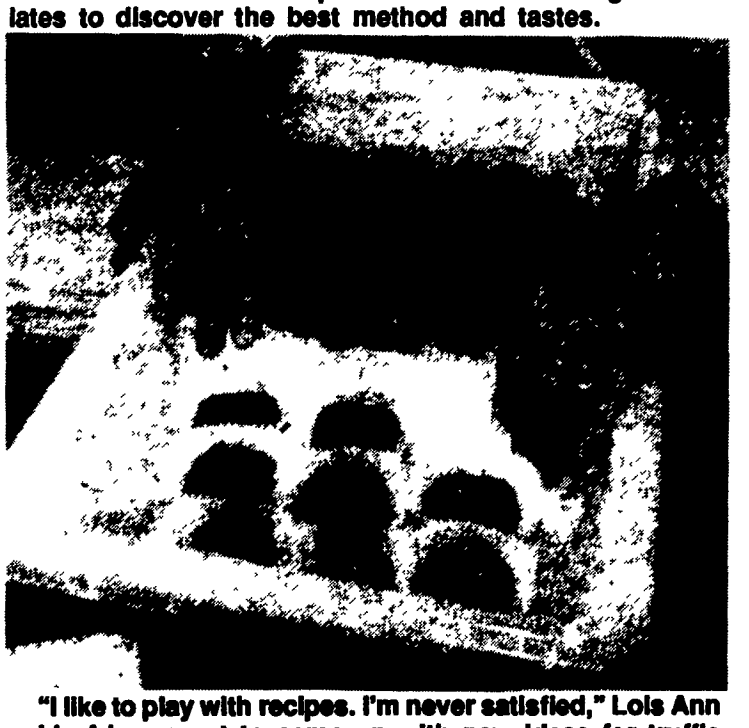
Instead of tempering chocolate, which is time consuming, many cooks add shortening or paraffin (which is not approved by the USDA for human consumption).

But, adding shortening or wax to chocolate results in a waxy taste in the mouth. You can taste the different. If you take a bite from candies made with these different methods, you will find the chocolate made by tempering melts in your mouth with no waxy aftertaste.

After studying recipes, Lois Ann experimented with different techniques such as using warming trays and heating pads, but she took the plunge and invested in a $700 machine to melt chocolate. While that may seem like a lot of money, Lois Ann believes it is well worth it. The machine keeps the chocolate at the same temperature all day.

"People are becoming more selective in what they eat. They don't want empty calories. A small piece of my chocolate is more satisfying than eating a whole candy bar," Lois Ann said.

Lois Ann Littlehale experimented with making chocolates to discover the best method and tastes.



"I like to play with recipes. I'm never satisfied," Lois Ann said of her quest to come up with new ideas for truffle fillings.

After experimenting with many recipes, Lois Ann started developing her own. "I like to play with recipes. I'm never satisfied, but always like to play a bit more," she said.

Some of her specialties include raspberry truffles made with dark chocolate and sprinkled with gold dust, chocolates in a cream base or with nuts, or with chocolate centers. Roachers, which are slivered almonds, toasted coconut, and a blend of chocolate, provide another tasty option for chocolate lovers.

"Certain coatings complement each other. Others don't do anything for it," Lois Ann said of her quest to develop the perfect combinations.

Although Lois Ann was finicky about taste, she also didn't want to settle for ordinary-looking chocolates. She wanted something with pizazz.

That's how she came up with truffles embossed in gold. One of her items is chocolate liquor cups, dusted inside with edible gold dust that rises to the top when liquid is poured into them. Another unique idea is her white chocolate cups made to fill with mousse or some other special filling, the dessert turns an ordinary dessert into a gourmet one.

Since Lois Ann drives a Corvette, she was thrilled to have a mold for a 1963 split window Corvette, which she makes in white or dark chocolate and is considering filling with chocolate hearts.

Before Lois Ann started offering her chocolates for sale, she entered her chocolates in fairs to see how they would do among competition. All her entries took first-place ribbons and at one fair, her truffles took best of show out of 240 entries.

After Lois Ann had her candy recipes perfected, the next problem was to find suitable packaging. Lois Ann considers herself lucky by finding a candy supplier who was going out of business. She purchased candy boxes and gossamer paper to add an elegant touch.

Lois Ann said that her perfectionistic tendencies were absorbed from watching her parents, who, she said, were exellent cooks but never wanted to be bothered with having kids help in the kitchen. She spent endless hours watching her parents make ethnic Slovak dishes such as perogies — a day-long chore.

When Lois Ann was on her own, cooking became her forte.

"If the family eats the stuff, I know it's good," she said of her husband Leon and four adult children.

Lois Ann's interest in selling chocolates was piqued when she and a friend set up a stand to sell crafts at a show with other craftsman. All day long, the stand that was selling homemade candies was busy.

"People can't eat wreaths but they go nuts with chocolate," Lois Ann remarked to her friends.

Now that Lois Ann knows how to make good chocolates, she isn't taking them to craft shows.

"It's too 'iffy' to demonstrate at craft shows. If it's high humidity, chocolate doesn't work well. To make high quality chocolates, temperatures cannot be flunctuating. I'd rather retail," Lois Ann said.

Lois Ann's chocolates have the stamp of approval from the Pa. Dept. of Ag. All ingredients have been analyzed and approved. In addition, Lois Ann has taken out an insurance policy as protection from liability.

"I need to pay the same rate as the big chocolate companies," she said.

Although Lois Ann has no experience in marketing, she said, contacting potential buyers such as bed and breakfasts and upscale restaurants doesn't faze her.

"I am confident that I have a good product," she said.

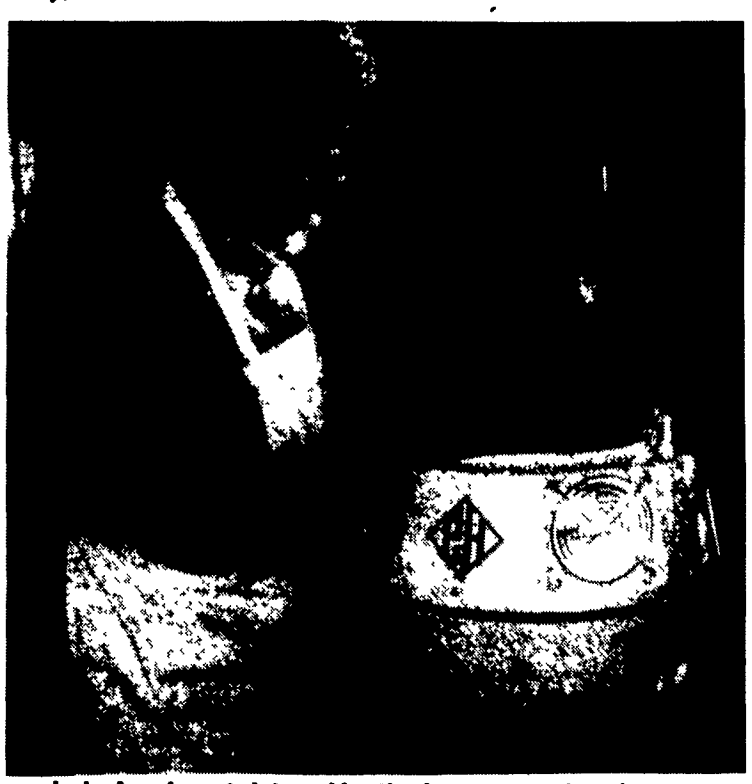
The costs for liability, licensing, and marketing does not deter Lois Ann's enthusiasm for operating an in-home business.

"I know that someday this will take off," she said.

Her dream is to develop a self-supporting business, but even more than that she wants to produce quality chocolates that keep people happy.

"I know my chocolates are the best. People just need to taste them," she said.

To order homemade chocolates, write or phone Old Colebrook Sweets and Treats, 191 Old Colebrook Rd., Marietta, PA 17547. Phone (717) 426-2848.



Lois Ann is not detered by the investment in a $700 chocolate warmer, the inspection procedures by the Pennsylvania Dept. of Agriculture, and the marketing required to start up a home-based business. "I know that someday this will take off. My chocolates are the best," she said.

Keep The Farm In The Family

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.) — Are you a farm operator who wants to be sure your farm would continue to operate if something happened to you? Do you want to transfer the farm to your children? Will your family have enough money to keep the farm going? Will you have enough money to live on the farm to retire? Have you talked with other family members?

To get answers to questions like these, plan to attend "Keeping the Farm in the Family," on Tuesday, November 26, from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. at the Wayne County Extension Office, Court House, Honesdale. Reservations are required for this estate planning workshop. Call (717) 253-5970 ext. 239.

GROW HORSERADISH FOR A ZESTY HARVEST

The brown-skinned "zesty" root of the horseradish has always had an image problem. Used so infrequently, horseradish often spoils in the refrigerator. Horseradish is now sold combined with mustard, cream or mayonnaise sauces and spreads. Horseradish, a native of Southeastern Europe, is a hardy and ragged-looking plant that produces a mustard oil. Planted in Colonial American gardens, it escaped to flourish as a wild plant and nuisance in many gardens.

Horseradish seeds are not reliable. Do not collect and plant seeds in the spring. Instead of seeds, horseradish roots called 'root cuttings' and sometimes called 'sets', are planted in the spring. They are harvested in November.

Horseradish sets are small or slender selected roots, 8 to 12 inches long. Retrimmed from the main roots at your autumn harvest, choose roots that are ¼ to ⅝ " in diameter.

As these cuttings are removed from the main roots, it is wise to make a square cut at the top and a slanting cut at the bottom as an aid to subsequent proper planting procedure. This will ensure proper orientation of roots at planting. The sets are cleaned, bundled, packaged and held under refrigeration or in a vegetable pit or root cellar until planting time the following spring. An alternative procedure is to leave a few plants in the garden over winter for spring digging and taking of cuttings at or near planting time.

Plant sets in late April to early May. Place sets at an angle in a furrow so the top will all be in one direction in the row. As the cutting is dropped in a 3, to 5" furrow, draw a little soil over the lower end with your foot and tamp firmly. After all cuttings are dropped, cover with soil to slightly above ground level. Be sure the soil is firmly in contact with the cutting.

Most growth on horseradish occurs in late summer or early fall. As a result it's best to delay harvest until October or November, or just before the ground freezes. Dig up the entire root. A perennial, pieces of roots left in the ground will grow and become a weed in the garden next spring. Roots left in the ground over the winter will lack the quality of young roots. Therefore, horseradich is best grown only as an annual crop.

To harvest dig a trench 12 to 24 inches deep along one side of the row. Than, working from the opposite side of the row with a shovel or spading fork, dig the roots, using the tops as a handle for pulling laterally from the loosened soil. The tops should be trimmed from the roots to within one inch of the crown. Side and bottom roots are trimmed off, reserving the laterals for the succeeding season's crop.

To store horseradish roots for frequent fresh grinding, clean, wash, and store in plastic bags in the refrigerator, or root cellar. When stored in the refrigerator, protect horseradish roots from light to prevent them from turning green.

During mild winters store the roots in an 8 to 10-inch deep trench lined with clean straw. Place roots on the straw and cover with a 6-inch layer of clean straw. As the weather becomes colder, cover the straw with 6 inches or more of soil before the ground freezes. This will protect the roots from freezing.

Peel and gratre the horseradish root directly into wine or distilled vinegar (horseradish becomes discolored in cider vinegar). Use vinegar full strength or diluted — your preference. Bottle and refrigerate. This mixture will store for several weeks. Horseradish can also be dried, ground to a powder, and bottled. Prepared in this manner, it is not as high in quality, but it will keep much longer.

If purchasing at a farm market, look for smooth, unblemished roots (6-12" long). Wear rubber gloves before scrubbing and peeling the root.

QUESTION — Faye Dove, Myerstown, needs help in find a book, "Dark Fury," by Helga Moray.

QUESTION — Mrs. L.C. Reider of Red Lion, would like some information about the Savory roasting pan. The bottom has a deep well on the outside. She asks is you can still buy them and who manufactures them?

QUESTION — A reader says she has a gold-leaf frosted glass (Starlyte) wine bottle, and 5 of the little glasses are missing. Would anyone know where she can find some? She also needs a Singer sewing machine manual for Model 347.

ANSWER — Another answer from Walter Zarnbek of New Jersey on how to remove the outer and inner shell of the black walnut. He says that about 50 years ago he remembers a neighbor who ran the walnuts through an ordinary corn sheller that almost every farmer had. Sometimes he ran them through a second and a third time. He said that if the sheller teeth were not too worn out, this method will do the job the first time through.

ANSWER — Robert Seeley, of Brewster, N.Y., was interested in finding replacement teeth for a 5-wheel, side-delivery hayrake made by Morrill Rake Co. Tim Paulus of Pittstown, NJ, writes that if his Morrill Rake has Double Rubber Torsion Teeth, Central Tractor #15532-075 will fit. Call 1-800-247-7508 for more information on ordering the teeth or finding a local CT store. Seely is still looking for an owner's manual for an Oliver Model 62T hay baler.

ANSWER — Renee Callie of Bangor, Pa., wanted to know where to buy deactivated powdered charcoal. A reader from Martinsburg provides an answer. New Life Natural Foods carries it and will sell by mail order. The address is: New Life Natural Foods, RD#2, Box 68-A, Martinsburg, PA 16662, or call 814-793-2291.

ANSWER — Evelyn Snooks, Leesburg, Va., wanted information on a new form of crocheting called camel stitch. Margaret Strause of Leesport, Pa., says that basic instructions and patterns are available from N.S.D. Stitchery, PO Box 880, Brandon, MS 39043. For VISA or Master Card orders only, call 1-800-542-4010.

ANSWER — Arlene Petrizio wanted to buy for a reasonable sum any craft patterns for wood cutouts that are to be painted, but no fretwork patterns. A reader writes that there are numerous sources of wood cut-out patterns. Craft shows have unfinished products, create and draw your own items. Bookstores, libraries, and wood-working shopes might have them. There are also craft magazines available by subscription or as single copies at grocery stores and newsstands. She suggests that friends can trade publications.

ANSWER — Mrs. Andrew Lykens wanted to know where to get wicks for her New Perfection kerosene cook stove. They are available at Weaver's Fixit Shop, 170 Kurtz Road, New Holland, Pa., 17557. She doesn't know if they would have these particular ones, however. Another responder says the wicks (331X) for Perfection stoves sell for $4.75 plus postage are available from Harvey B. Martin, RD#1 Box 192, Port Trevorton, PA 17864.

ANSWER — Response to Linda Gorman's request for a recipe for a salve for animals. Mix equal parts of the following: oil of camphor, turpentine, kerosene, melted lard. The responder got this recipe 20 years ago from a missionary in the Phillipines. She says it does the job. She also provides a good salve for human hands: soften 8 oz. petroleum jelly in hot water or carefully microwave. Add 1 tablespoon kerosene and 2 oz. eucalyptus oil. Stir well and pour into containers. It really works on wintertime "dairy farmer" hands!

Think about it Every time you get to the end of the row, you say to yourself, "If my tractor had a better turning radius, then I'd spend less time turning around And more time turning a profit"

Spend More Time Turning A Profit And Less Time Turning Your Tractor.

Don't dream anymore Because the new turning radius on the 9435 AGCO® Allis tractor has arrived How did we do it? For starters, the frame has been contoured four inches inward on each side of the engine And we've recessed the space between the grille and radiator, giving you even more clearance between the front tires and frame We've also sculpted and sized the side quarter panels without disturbing the tractor's overall appearance

- The 9435 has 135 PTO hp and a 4-speed powershift transmission with 32 forward and 32 reverse well-spaced speeds
- To give you a wider selection of working speeds, we've placed gear ratios close together, so that engine horsepower can be matched with implement capacities and field conditions
- The Series 40 liquid-cooled engine has a combustion chamber design which provides excellent fuel economy while reducing exhaust emissions
- The AWD models feature a true centerline drive shaft for more efficient power transfer and less maintenance

As always, behind every AGCO Allis tractor, there's a 4-year/4,000-hour warranty backing it To see the new turning radius, stop by and see us We'll be glad to show you how much time and money you can save

*R.M. denotes Relative Maturity

These test results as of 11/06/96 show the reason that Doebler customers know the importance of the Regional Advantage. You get many extras in your Doebler bag, like these varieties shown above packaged with 10% extra seed in each bag (88,000 kernels). Another dividend that is provided is service after the sale. If you have not tried Doebler's hybrid corns and Doebler's premium alfalfas this is the time to begin.

PERFORMANCE for real value

Confidence grows with consistency.
Consistency increases with experience.
With experience comes a difference.

The difference is regional.
Regional is like playing with a home field advantage

Great looks. Aggressive power.

Powerful engines

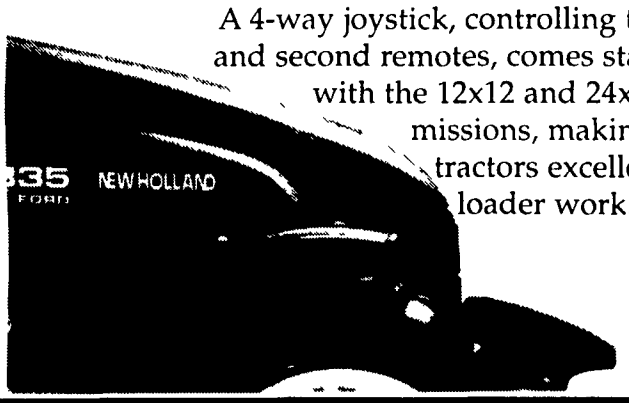
Rugged, compact New Holland engines work big, producing 56 to 86 PTO horsepower, and between 22% and 30% torque rise. There is 1000 useful rpm between maximum torque and maximum power. Not only that, they're quiet. And miserly with fuel.

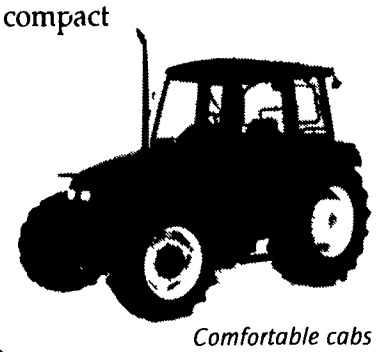
Three transmissions

Choose from three transmissions:

- reliable 12x4 synchro
- 12x12 Synchro Command™ with shuttle
- 24x12 Dual Command™ with shuttle

A 4-way joystick, controlling the first and second remotes, comes standard with the 12x12 and 24x12 transmissions, making these tractors excellent for loader work.





Comfortable cabs

Visibility and Comfort

Comfortable flat decks and short sloping hoods give you exceptional vision straight ahead, and good sight lines to the front wheels. You sit comfortably, with plenty of room for your knees and feet. And you can enter or exit either side.

There's plenty more, too: foldable ROPS; A/C cabs (even on the 56-hp model); electro-hydraulic diff-lock; heavy duty 3-point.

Tell your dealer you want to try a "35 Series", the latest member of the exciting New Holland family of tractors.

Vegetable, Berry Growers Seminar Set

BUTLER (Butler Co.) — Once again the Western Pennsylvania Vegetable and Berry Growers Seminar will be held here at the Days Inn on Thursday, Dec. 12.

Every year growers from western Pennsylvania as well as parts of Ohio and West Virginia meet to learn the latest information and products available to help them grow top quality produce. Speakers from universities and private industry will discuss production practices, marketing, pest management, and other topics.

Commercial exhibitors include seed companies, chemical companies, machinery dealers, greenhouse suppliers, irrigation equipment and distributors of a wide range of products for the commercial grower. Penn State extension and commercial suppliers are again co-sponsoring this event.

Two special concurrent sessions will be held with the main vegetable production seminars. The morning special session will be on marketing and customer relations, featuring special guest speaker Pittsburgh Post Gazette Food Editor Suzanne Martinson. The afternoon special session will feature Dr. Marvin Pritts of Cornell University, speaking on weed control strategies for small fruit production and also a special grower discussion of the plasticulture system of growing strawberries.

The main vegetable production sessions will emphasize commercial production of tomatoes. Denny Summers of Asgrow Seed Company will discuss development of tomato varieties now and in the future. Mike Orzolek of Penn State University will discuss different growing systems for commercial fresh market tomato production.

Alan MacNab, Penn State pathologist for vegetable crops will recount and explain the many disease problems suffered by tomatoes and other crops in the entomologist for vegetable crops with the Penn State Entomology Department.

To register or for more information, contact Penn State Extension, Westmoreland County, RR 12, Box 202E, Greensburg, PA 15601, (412) 837-1402 or any Penn State extension office in western Pennsylvania.

Penn State Honored For Environmental Programs

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Two environmentally friendly programs at Penn State — the development of PennMulch and recycling at Beaver Stadium — recently received 1996 Governor's Awards for Environmental Excellence.

Offered by the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection's Office of Pollution Prevention and Compliance Assistance, the awards were presented in four categories: education and outreach, pollution prevention, recycling and market development, and technology innovation.

Penn State and PennTurf Products Inc. received their award for a nonprofit and nonmanufacturing small business in the technology innovation category for the development of PennMulch, a material used for mulching turfgrass seedbeds.

PennMulch, a weed-free, easy to store and use material, is manufactured from recycled newsprint that is shredded, combined with a starter fertilizer and green dye, and then pelleted. The mulch pellets expand when wetted, allowing a small quantity to cover a large area — one 6-pound bag covers up to 100 square feet. Mulching speeds both plant germination and growth and reduces the potential for soil erosion and weed invasion.

Invented by agronomy instructor George Hamilton, it is patented by Penn State and licensed by PennTurf Products of State College, which developed the full-scale manufacturing process and the North American distribution network, including 35 distributors in 30 states and Canada.

According to the award citation, "PennMulch is being widely accepted as a convenient, efficient, and cost-effective way of mulching turfgrass seedbeds. The biodegradable PennMulch pellets can be spread easily by hand or spreader, eliminating the need for expensive equipment such as hydroseeders or straw blowers. In 1995, the first full year of production, more than two million pounds of PennMulch were sold, and sales are steadily increasing. The vast majority of PennMulch has been sold to the professional turfgrass market."

The turfgrass industry, including athletic fields, golf courses and home lawns, is a $1.4 billion business in Pennsylvania alone.

"The Penn State Beaver Stadium Recycling Effort is unique among universities in the country. Although Pennsylvania has a statewide recycling goal of 25 percent by 1998, Penn State is already recycling at a 41 percent rate. The average tonnage recycled during a football season has risen from two to 34 tons. As a result, Penn State has avoided more than $2,400 in garbage tipping fees, reduced man hours by 15 percent for post-game cleanup, saved approximately $6,283 and earned $11,019, which was donated to the United Way of Centre County," according to the award citation.

The recycling program was developed by the Penn State Department of Athletics, and Office of Physical Plant, and the Waste Authority with help from the Juniata Valley Boy Scout Council, the Hemlock Girl Scout Council and the partnership of a local scrap dealer, the Steel Recycling Institute and the Glass Packaging Institute. Instead of the very few neglected recycling bins in 1990, the more than 100,000 football fans and tailgaters now use 23 recycling stations, 17 of which are staffed by the Boy and Girl Scouts.

For descriptions of other winners, visit the Department of Environmental Protection Web site at http://www.dep.state.pa.us and choose Pollution Prevention & Compliance Assistance.

For more information on the Recycling program, contact Al Matyasovsky, who oversees Penn State's recycling efforts, at (814) 863-4719, and Joanne Shafer, Centre County recycling coordinator at (814) 238-7005. For information on PennMulch, contact George Hamilton, Penn State, at (814) 865-3007, and Marty Bradley, PennTurf Products at (814) 234-0391.

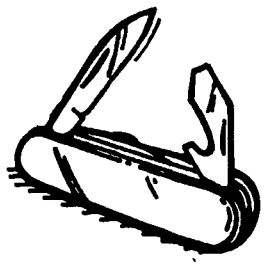
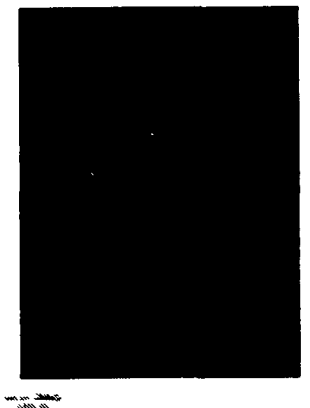
A Knife Cuts Twine... An Oswalt® Hay Saw Cuts Hay!



(NEW HAY SAW PROCESSOR MAKES QUICK WORK OF LONG STEMMED HAY)



Some mixer companies will tell you they have "knives" installed on the augers of their mixers that will cut through long stemmed hay But that's like comparing a pocket knife to a chain saw Oswalt's newest feed mixer cuts through long stemmed hay, turning it into a blended, uniform and highly digestible ration and it does it in record time!

Hay Saw sections are installed in a continuous ribbon on the leading edge flighting of the bottom augers As hay is pulled into the lower augers, an even sawing action cuts effortlessly through the long stemmed hay And because it saws as the auger turns, it actually processes hay with a lot less torque, saving time and fuel

Ask your Oswalt Dealer for a demo Then you'll see what we mean when we say Nothing Performs Like an Oswalt!

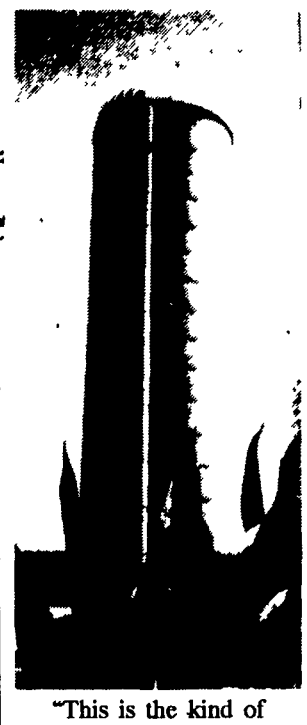
THINK CONCRETE WHEN PLANNING YOUR FEED STORAGE!!



"This is the kind of silo you need to protect your valuable feed."

"HOW WILL YOU BE STORING YOUR VALUABLE FORAGES AND GRAINS IN THE 21st CENTURY?"

It's not too early to begin planning your storage and feeding systems for the year 2000 and beyond.

As margins narrow, dairymen need to invest in efficiency; this can have as great an influence on PROFIT as milk price changes.

Protect your valuable feeds from the elements... increase the efficiency of your feeds, your animals, and your labor.

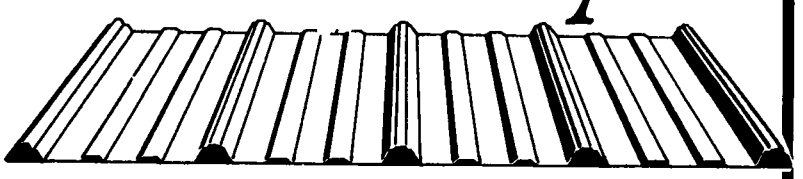
Rural Economy



Cost-efficient Centurydrain™ roofing and siding is on some of the best looking buildings in the country.

Build with Centurydrain roofing and siding and you've built a money-wise structure. Full-hard, high tensile galvanized steel, and an exclusive drain channel for a dry interior give you a building that'll handle years of hard duty and hard weather. Good looking, too. Crisp lines and plenty of bright, long-lasting colors make Wheeling Centurydrain as handsome as it is economical.

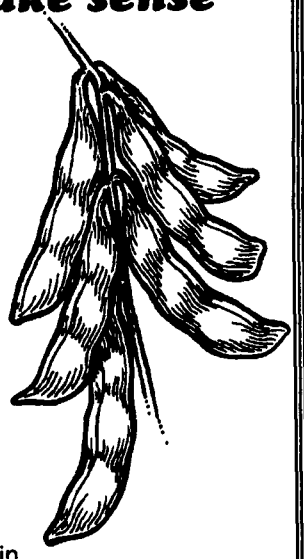
Sell your beans?
"It just doesn't make sense"

1. Why loose the 18% high energy oil in your own beans?
2. Why let the soybean processor take the valuable lechicin?
3. Why forfeit 50% of the metabolizable energy over SBM?
4. Why pay storage, trucking and shrink?



Be sensible! Let SCHNUPP'S custom roast your Soybeans

Receive the value of added fat in your ration - MORE MILK
Get the most By-Pass Protein available in your beans - MORE PROTEIN UPTAKE
Keep all the nutritional components originally in the soybean. - MORE FLEXIBILITY

ASCITES AND ARTIFICIAL NEURAL NETWORKS

William B. Roush, Ph.D.
Department of Poultry Science

A physiological problem such as ascites in poultry and computer algorithms such as artificial neural networks seem quite unrelated. What could ascites and artificial neural networks have to do with each other?

First of all, what is ascites? Ascites is characterized by an accumulation of fluid in the body cavity of poultry and has a significant economic impact on broiler chickens and turkeys. Several physiological factors have become associated with ascites in the bird, including increased blood pressure and lowered oxygen levels in the blood.

Secondly, what are artificial neural networks? Biological neurons which allow us to think, feel pain, etc. were the inspiration for computer scientists in developing computerized algorithms for relating input and output variables. Each artificial neuron works like a switch. Information about a system is input to the neuron and when a threshold is met, an output is made, usually to another neuron or as the final output. The power of artificial neurons is in their interaction with other neurons. The network of artificial neurons (or artificial neural network) has been found to be a powerful tool in capturing information about data relationships.

The network is usually made up of a layer of neurons representing the inputs, a hidden layer representing features relating the input neurons to outputs, and a third layer of output neurons. Patterns of information about a problem, inputs and observed outputs, are presented to the neural network in an iterative manner. As the neural network learns, its predictions are compared to the observed outputs and adjustments are made to the neurons in the neural network so that the difference or error between the predicted and observed outputs are minimized.

How can ascites and artificial neural networks be related? In a paper to be published in Poultry Science, researchers from Penn State and the University of Arkansas found that an artificial neural network can be trained to predict the presence or absence of ascites in broiler chickens. The neural network had 15 inputs of physiological data (e.g., oxygen levels of the blood, heart rate, etc.), a hidden layer of 16 neurons, and an output layer of two neurons (the presence or absence of ascites). A comparison was made between the prediction of ascites by the neural network and the diagnosis of ascites made by an expert on ascites. The results (prediction of ascites/diagnosis of ascites) were 22/22 for the training set used in developing the neural network. The results (prediction of ascites/diagnosis of ascites) were 16/14 and 42/41 for two verification sets of data which had not been involved in the neural network development. The increased number of cases predicted to have ascites was attributed to birds which were in the developmental stages of ascites, but not exhibiting fluid accumulation in the body cavity. The neural network was able to identify ascites in birds at a stage that was not readily detectable to human diagnosticians.

Artificial neural networks have been used in human medicine for diagnosis of diseases such as appendicitis, back pain, myocardial infarction, and skin disorders. The research conducted at Penn State and the University of Arkansas shows potential for the use of artificial neural networks for the diagnosis of physiological problems of poultry and other animals.

Maryland Small Farm Cooperative Kickoff Dec. 3

JEFFERSON, Md. — The Maryland Small Farm Cooperative has announced its first open membership meeting on Tuesday, Dec. 3, at the Jefferson Community Center beginning at 7 p.m.

The community center is located at the intersection of Route 340 and Landar Rd. in Jefferson, Md.

The primary objective of the Maryland Small Farm Cooperative is to unify small farms in order to improve long-term profitability. This improved profitability will be realized through several functions of the cooperative: 1) Reduced cost of inputs from group purchasing power; 2) Increased access to up-to-date information on the best and latest techniques; 3) Aggressive cooperative marketing that is normally beyond the range accessible to smaller growers; and 4) Access to services among cooperative members such as hauling and field work. There is incredible potential for small farms and this cooperative in the Mid-Atlantic region because of the region's diversity and market access.

Come out and decide for yourself if joining the Maryland Small Farm Cooperative is right.

There is no charge for the meeting. Refreshments will be served.

If you are interested in attending this first meeting, call Georgette Sears at (301) 694-1594, ext. 3576 in Frederick; outside of Frederick, call Kelli Wilson at (800) 315-3330.

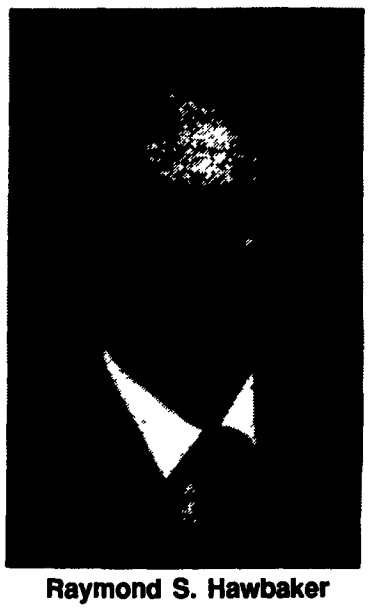
Hawbaker Joins Staff



Raymond S. Hawbaker

MERCERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — J.E. Kelsey Real Estate has announced that Raymond S. Hawbaker, Lemasters, has chosen to join the staff.

Hawbaker is a graduate of the Allied School of Real Estate in Harrisburg, after retiring as county executive director of ASCS in Washington and Allegany counties and as district director for 12 western counties in Maryland.

He is a chartered member of the Edward Parnell Ruritan Club, president of the Franklin County Farm Bureau, and director from Peters Township, treasurer of the Lemasters Community Improvement Association, member of the National Association of Retired Federal Employees, a member of the Greater Chambersburg Area Multilisting Association, and a member of the Fourth Street Church of the Brethren.

As a sales consultant with Kelsey Real Estate, Raymond will specialize in the listing and sale of farms and residential property.

Keystone Farm Credit Expands Alliance

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Keystone Farm Credit and American Express financial advisers (AEFA) announces the expansion of their alliance initially formed Dec. 1, 1995, throughout all of Keystone's branches.

Keystone Farm Credit and AEFA implemented their alliance in Lancaster and Chester counties.

Phil Kimmel, Keystone Farm Credit president, said, "we have been very pleased with our customers' response to our alliance with AEFA. Through this alliance AEFA will provide financial planning services and products to Keystone customers through all seven of our branches."

American Express Financial Advisors, Inc., headquartered in Minneapolis, Minn., provides an array of financial products and services to almost two million individuals and businesses throughout the nation. For the past two years, AEFA has established relationships with Farm Credit associations, local banks, and credit unions in a number of states to deliver financial planning services to their customers.

"We are convinced that farmers and other rural residents have a need and a desire for high-quality financial planning, through their financial institution. We are able to offer that, as well as a wide range of quality investment products, through this program," said Jim Choat, senior vice president for AEFA.

Agway Elects Officers

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Agway Inc. announced that Ralph H. Heffner, Pine Grove, Pa., and Robert L. Marshman, Oxford, N.Y. have been re-elected chairman and vice chairman, respectively of the Agway Inc. board of directors.

Donald P. Cardarelli has been re-elected president and chief executive officer of the 85,000-member agricultural cooperative. Cardarellli resides in Jamesville, N.Y. They were elected at a board meeting recently held in Syracuse, N.Y.

Heffner, who operates a dairy and fruit farm, was first elected to the Agway board in 1973 and became chairman in 1987. He is a graduate of Pennsylvania State University and holds a master's degree in agricultural economics from the University of Delaware.

Marshman has served as an Agway board member since 1989. Marshman, who studied agriculture at Cornell University, operates Marshman Farms, a sixth generation dairy farm.

Cardarelli, a native of Utica, N.Y., holds a master's degree in business administration from Syracuse University. An Agway employee since 1984, he was named president and CEO in early 1995.

Orefield Company Sells Tractors, Implements

OREFIELD (Lehigh Co.) — Eckroth Brothers Farm Equipment, Inc. is an authorized Massey Ferguson® dealership, providing sales and service support for tractors from 15 to 170 PTO horsepower, including compact tractors and related implements.

"The addition of the Massey Ferguson tractor line will help us continue to meet the needs of our customers by offering equipment with features and accessories previously not available through our dealership," said Daniel Eckroth, co-owner.

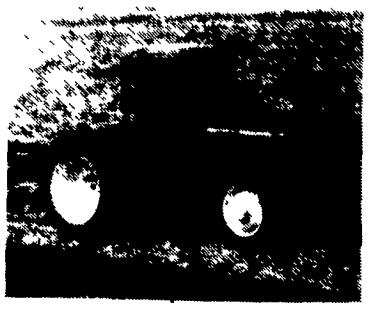
"Adding this new tractor line is also in keeping with our goal of serving as a one-stop resource for agricultural equipment and maintaining overall customer satisfaction," said Eugene Eckroth, co-owner.

Ronald Flicker, parts manager, said the dealership will stock replacement parts for all owners of Massey Ferguson tractors and implements and maintain a parts inventory for new equipment purchasers.

"For equipment-down emergencies, we can source a needed part from any of 12 strategically-located North American parts warehouses. Most of these orders are shipped the same day they are placed," said Flicke.

Bob Ziegler, service managers, and the department's service technicians are experienced at performing professional maintenance and repair work on farm equipment.

Deere Announces Five New Tractors



The 150-hp John Deere 7810 tractor is one of five 7000 Ten Series Tractors. The series also includes the 95-hp 7210, 105-hp 7410, 115-hp 7610, and 130-hp 7710. The models feature 6.8- and 8.1-liter John Deere PowerTech™ engines.

MOLINE, Ill. — John Deere has replaced its 7000 Series Tractors, introduced in 1992-1993, with five new 7000 Ten Series models that feature increased power and performance and provide even more operator comfort and convenience.

The new Ten Series Tractors include the 95-hp 7210, 105-hp 7410, 115-hp 7610, 130-hp 7710, and 150-hp 7810.

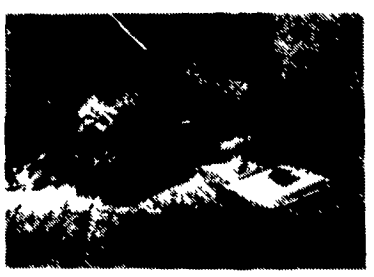
The Ten Series are powered by John Deere PowerTech™ diesel engines that provide an exclusive power bulge (extra horsepower above rated power) over a wide rpm range. The 8.1-liter engines that power the 7710 and 7810 produce an 8-percent power bulge. When engine rpm begins to decrease from rated speed as the load increases, the engines produce up to 10 and 12 extra horsepower, respectively, to handle the added load.

The 8.1-liter engines and the 6.8-liter engines used in the other Ten Series tractors feature high-efficiency turbochargers matched to the respective power ratings of the engines. This provides high-torque performance that is especially evident when starting loads at lower engine speeds. The 6.8-liter engines deliver a torque rise of 34 to 38 percent, depending on the model. The 8.1-liter engines produce a 50 percent torque rise.

The PowerTech engines are designed for long life, fuel-efficient operation, and low emissions. Both engines meet EPA and CARB emission standards.

Standard transmissions remain the same. The 12x4 SyncroPlus™ transmission is standard on the 7210 and 7410, while the three larger models feature the 16x16 PowrQuar™ transmission. The PowrQuad transmission with a new left-hand reverser is available as an option an all models. The reverser makes shuttle shifts during loading operations quick and easy, which increases productivity. Fully modulated shifts, without clutching, provide smooth direction changes.

Site-Specific Farming Technology Available For Retrofit



Case Corporation's site-specific farming technology — Advanced Farming Systems — is available for field-installation retrofit on Case IH 1600 and 2100 Series Axial-Flow® combines. The system comes complete with yield monitor, differential GPS antenna, differential GPS receiver, moisture sensor, grain-flow sensor, data cards and accompanying AFS mapping software.

RACINE, Wis. — The same technology that made Case IH Axial-Flow® combines the first in the industry with factory-installed site-specific farming equipment is available for retrofit on earlier combine models.

"We're continually introducing new technology for our older models of equipment," said Bill Sallas, Case Corporation product manager, parts marketing. " Case IH Advanced Farming Systems is revolutionary in site-specific farming, and through retrofit, we're making this state-of-the-art technology available to as many of our customers as possible."

AFS site-specific farming technology was introduced by the company in 1995, and recently became available as a factory-installed option on new combines. The complete package is now also available through Case IH dealerships for field-installation retrofit on Cass IH 1600 and 2100 Series Axial-Flow combines.

AFS interfaces with global positioning satellite technology which allows customers to gather detailed information about their fields. The AFS retrofit kit is a fully integrated system that comes complete witih everything a farmer needs to put site-specific farming to use: yield monitor, differential GPS antenna, differential GPS receiver, moisture sensor, grain-flow sensor, data cards and accompanying AFS mapping software. Together, the AFS components help farmers identify and correct problem areas with low yields.

"The AFS retrofit package is a convenient, trouble-free alternative for farmers who want to take advantage of increased productivity through site-specific farming, but who might not yet be in the market for a new combine," Sallas said. "The system comes as a complete package that has been designed and field tested for use on Case IH Axial-Flow combines."

Milmark Introduces Treatment

BERNVILLE (Berks Co.) — A cooperative effort between Willow Creek Animal Hospital and Milmark Research gave rise to a new OTC treatment for bacterial infections on skin and hooves.

A bacteria from rodent fecal matter is responsible for the development of certain infections such as "strawberry lesions" and "hairy warts" on hooves and skin. "Tetra-Salve" is a ready-to-use 1 percent Tetracycline formulation in a silicone-emulsion waterproof base that "clears up" the lesions on skin and hooves in 3 to 5 days.

Allantoin assists in healing, and the waterproof base ensures a lasting thorough application. "Tetra-Salve" is available through your veterinarian in a four-ounce tube for about $20.

The first $25,000 of proceeds will go toward the Dr. M. Lynn Sammons Award, a scholarship fund for 4th year veterinary students specializing in bovine medicine at the New Bolton Center of The University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine.

DEWORMING: TIMING IS EVERYTHING

The most effective deworming programs for the cow herd are those that are done at the right time.

For example, deworming a cow herd in the middle of the summer in our area is probably a waste of time, while a continuous program of spring and fall deworming for cows in rotational grazing programs will often result in near elimination of internal parasite infections.

Cattle become infected with internal parasites by eating infected grass. The grass becomes infected by the cyclic process of shedding of worm eggs in manure, maturation of the egg into an infective larvae, ingestion of the larvae, and maturation and shedding of eggs.

The key to a successful parasite control program is breaking the cycle with the right drug at the right time.

November is a key time for parasite control in our area. Treatment of cattle after the first hard freeze will tend to eliminate the source of new infections for next year.

Some of the products available for control of internal parasites also will control external parasites, particularly grubs. The caution must be made to complete the external parasite control by early winter because the grub can theoretically be killed while located near the spine and cause nerve damage.

A second deworming is usually recommended after the first few weeks of grazing in the spring. The purpose of this deworming is to remove the newly-acquired worms before they mature and can reinfect pastures. It is important to use a product that will kill both the mature and immature forms of the parasite when used in the spring.

Many herds may be infected with internal parasites this year that seldom have the problem. The reason is the extensive rain we had over the summer in most areas. The eggs and larvae do not live through extended dry periods like those we often experience in midsummer, especially if cattle are not closely confined or manure pats can dry up. This year, however, there were few or no dry periods, so the parasites remained. If there ever was a time when the potential for present and future parasite infection was available, this is the year.

For the spring deworming, the question often arises whether the cow and the calf will need treatment. Some recent work at Oklahoma State University (Barnes et al) has shown the most effective results in calf performance were when only the calves were treated.

I think some other things have to be considered, such as what kind of previous treatment program have the cows been on, what kind of pasture management program is in place, and how long has parasite control been in place for these pastures.

There have been some touted "natural" parasite control measures, including diatomaceous earth. A controlled study at the University of Minnesota determined that fecal egg counts were not different between calves receiving diatomaceous earth and no treatment, while those calves receiving an albendazole treatment at the same time were purged of fecal eggs.

Several other studies have shown that there is little difference in products when used at the time prescribed for that product. Application can be made in one of several ways including feeding from blocks to simply pouring it on their back. Watch the cost per animal, however, and be sure that every animal has been treated adequately.

Recent Facts About Beef

- Cattle production is the largest agricultural enterprise in the world.
- The value of all sales of cattle and calves in the U.S. is $34 billion.
- The sale of cattle represents almost 20 percent of the value of the sale of all agricultural products in the U.S., making it the largest segment of U.S. agriculture.
- The value of retail beef consumed in the U.S. is $51.4 billion.
- Purchases of beef represent 48.8 percent of the value of all meat purchases by U.S. consumers.
- The value of by-products from a 1,000-pound steer is about $100, most of which is exported.

DASHING THROUGH THE SNOW.

The storm will pass. And thankfully, so will a Kubota snowblower. Try our snowblower attached to a Kubota B-Series or L-Series tractor for a snow removal team that's hard to beat.

They are a cinch to operate using the tractor's 3-point hitch as a hydraulic lifting system. Clear snow from driveways, roads or parking lots. Break up and clear heavy drifts. A special heavy-duty rear-mount snowblower is a recent addition to Kubota's B- and L-Series line-up.

So before the forecast calls for snow, make a dash to your Kubota dealer.

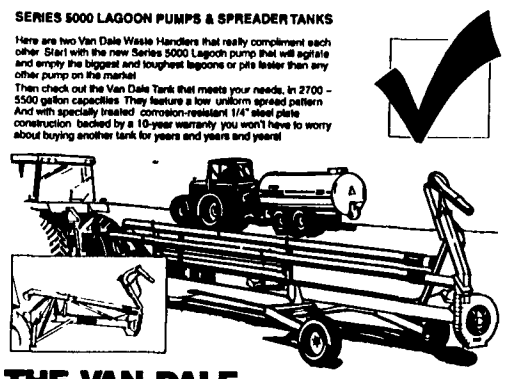
Van Dale Tag Team!

SERIES 5000 LAGOON PUMPS & SPREADER TANKS

Here are two Van Dale Waste Handlers that really complement each other. Start with the new Series 5000 Lagoon pump that will agitate and empty the biggest and toughest lagoons or pits faster than any other pump on the market.
Then check out the Van Dale Tank that meets your needs, in 2700 - 5500 gallon capacities. They feature a low uniform spread pattern. And with specially treated corrosion-resistant 1/4" steel plate construction backed by a 10-year warranty you won't have to worry about buying another tank for years and years and years!



THE VAN DALE

Hurry In...

The compact size of the L35 with TL720& BT900 allows you to operate efficiently in tight, small areas that are inaccessible to larger TLBs And, it's easy to move from one job to another. It can be transported with just a 3/4 ton pickup truck and trailer, usually with a regular Class C Driver's License. Operators find the controls "user -friendly," especially useful in rental fleets, and large contractor fleets where operators may go from one piece of equipment to another on a regular basis. The L35 retains the full versatility of a compact with its 3-pt. hitch and PTO for tilling, mowing or box scraper work.

The Extra Dimension in Chopping
One-Piece Quadra-Shark™ Rotor Blades

- Unique 4-point, reversible, serrated blade designed for chopping -- no bolt-on sickle blades.
- Blades are through-hardened 3/16-inch thick steel for longer life.
- Chops newspaper, hay, straw and other material.
- Easy and quick to reverse or replace blades.
- Hinged deck for easy access to blades.
- External bearings on rotor shaft.
- Choice of adjustable grates.
- Length-of-cut option.
- Unmatched serviceability.
- Convenient controls.
- Gasoline engine or electric motor.
- Patz Credit makes it affordable.

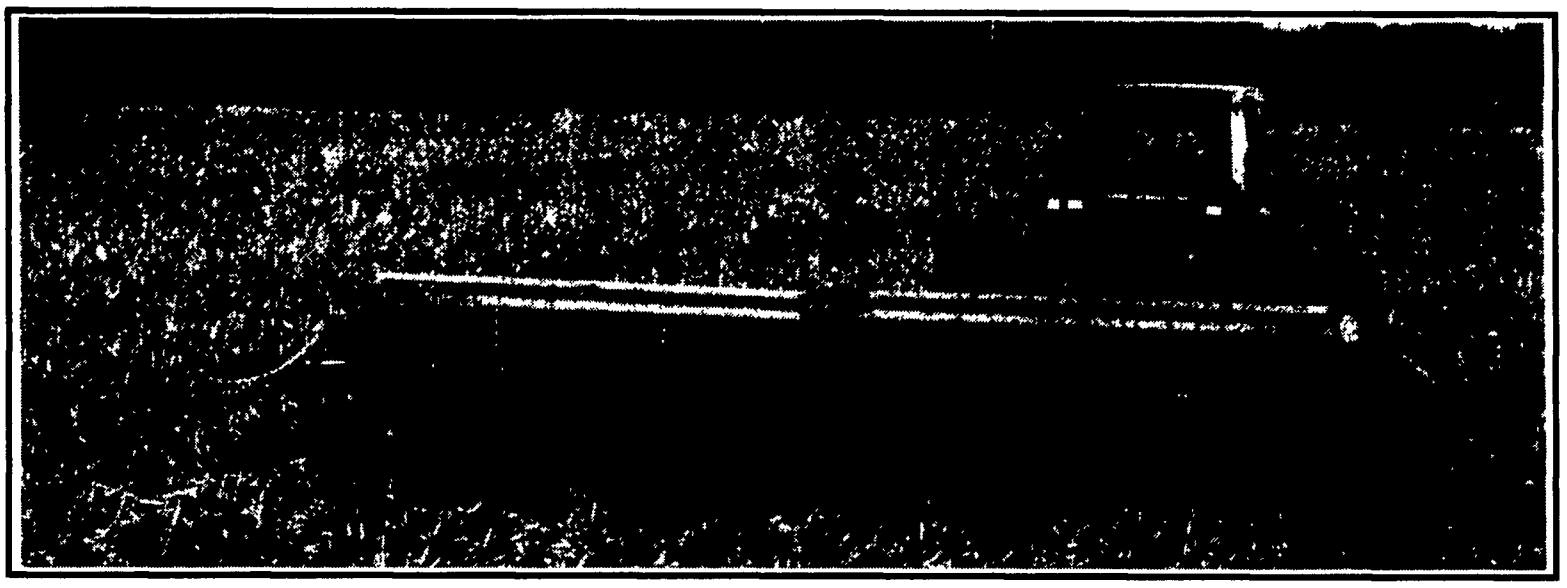
SPECIALISTS IN THE SCIENCE OF SEED PLACEMENT



The successful germination of any seed depends on the enviroment in which you place it... and increasingly, that environment includes a world of residue. Great Plains Drills have been shaped by years of experience. We've been building min-till drills since 1981 and no-till drills since 1982. Regardless of which tillage practice or condition you face, accurate seed placement is important. Every Great Plains Drill seeds with a time-proven technique we call the Science of Seeding.

GREAT PLAINS DRILLS SEED IN NO-TIL AND CONVENTIONAL TILLAGE CONDITIONS... THE LITTLE THINGS MAKE THE DIFFERENCE

1 DOUBLE DISC OPENERS with PARALLEL LINKAGE available on most models

2 SPEED-CHANGE GEARBOX makes seeding rate changes easier

3 DIAL-A-DEPTH system makes changing planting depth quick & easy

4 FLUTED SEED CUPS - a Great Plains exclusive - deliver outstanding accuracy. Whether the seed you're drilling is small, large or fragile, the Great Plains time-proven metering system will deliver the rate you choose evenly and gently - without scuffing.

NEW TOUGHNESS OLD-FASHIONED DURABILITY

When the Case International 3800 Tandem Disk Harrow was introduced, it combined real improvements with the quality features of the 350, 370, and 475.

For instance, a 1½ inch round arbor bolt at the heart of every gang assembly.

Or consider the spring-cushion, self-leveling hitch. And, you'll disk confidently all day long using the mechanical depth control.

The 3800 is available in widths from 9 ft 1 in. to 20 ft 6 in. Just pick the 3800 that fits your power availability and tillage needs.

Buy your new cushion gang disk harrow right here in Quarryville 12', 14', 18' In Stock For Fall Tillage.
Competitive financing available - or - an extra rebate for cash

The new generation of Belarus. For a new generation of farmers.

Exceptional value. That's what cost conscious farmers expect from hardworking Belarus tractors. But after twenty years we feel it's time for a change. So we've updated the features and styling of our new 8000 and 9000 Series while keeping everything that makes Belarus so dependable.

Belarus Tractors From 22 HP To 100 HP

Like our new synchromesh transmission for example. It offers 14 forward and 4 reverse speeds for easy to shift power. Plus an improved turning radius provides greater maneuverability for a whole range of applications.

See your local Belarus dealer for a test drive and see for yourself.

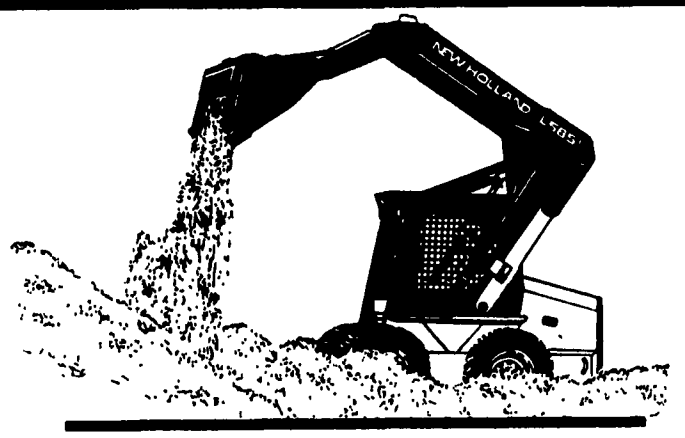
1 FARM EQUIPMENT

THE RELIABLE ONE



TOUGHER THAN THE REST

The New Holland Model L565 Super Boom™ skid-steer loader is tougher, more durable and more reliable than ever.

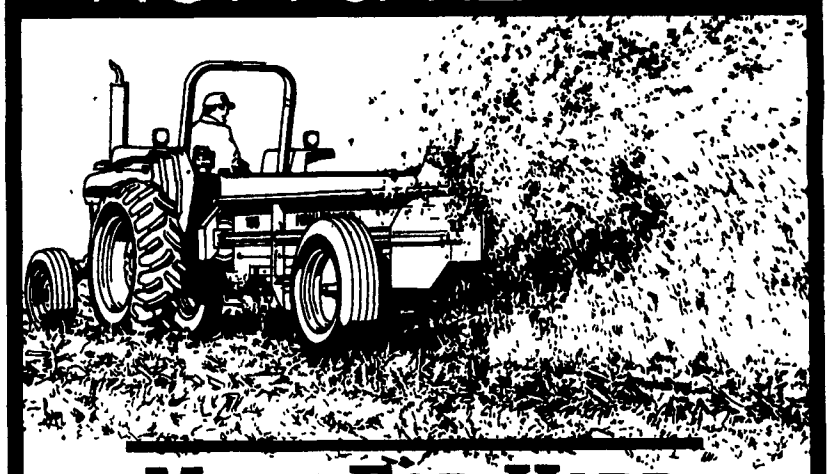
The "L565" offers a 40 horsepower diesel engine with an SAE load rating of a powerful 1,500 pounds.

The Pick Up 'n Go™ universal attachment system makes it compatible with New Holland and competitive attachments. The strong boom design and massive loader pins make it more reliable. And the quick engine access makes it easier to service.

See what makes the Super Boom so tough.

NEW HOLLAND

NO. 1 SPREADER



MADE FOR HARD WORK AND HEAVY LOADS

The choice of farmers in North America year after year, New Holland box spreaders can be counted on to do the heavy work that can't wait.

The model 145 hauls up to 177 bushels of material, while the Model 155 can handle up to 217 bushels on one load. The rugged A-frame hitch carries the load safely from below and does not pull it from the front.

Of course, the sides and floor boards will be replaced free for 12 years, if they fail. And only your New Holland dealer can offer this Bonded Protection.

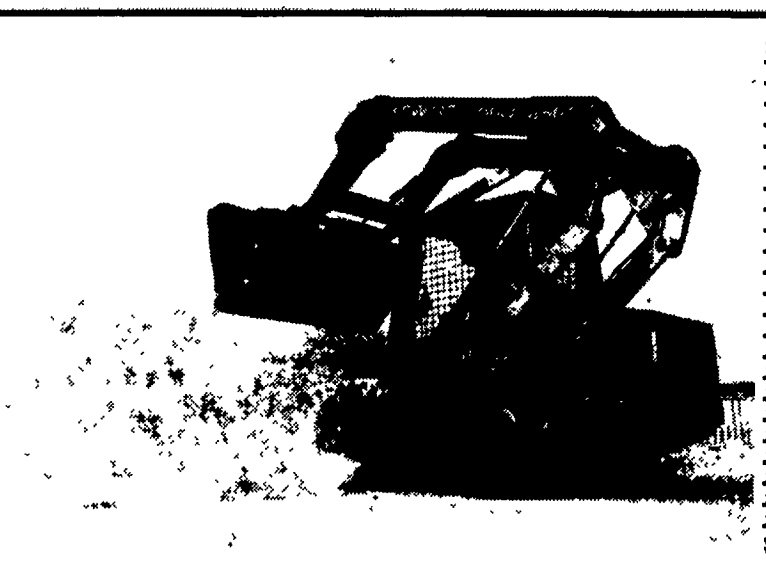
Productivity advantages you expect from New Holland

NEW HOLLAND



The New Holland Super Boom™ is still the best in the business for productivity and performance. That's because we've kept our advantages of boom reach, lift height, lift capacity, longer wheelbase, higher ground speed and stability. Add that to Super Boom's superior visibility and breakout force and you've got what it takes to get the job done quickly and efficiently.

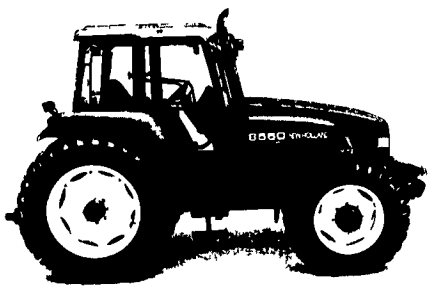
STEP UP TO THE POWER!



BE MORE PRODUCTIVE EVERY DAY

New Holland 60 Series GEMINI " tractors deliver uncompromised power and versatile performance

POWER. Reliable 7 5 liter engines feature exceptional lugging ability

PERFORMANCE. The exclusive 18 x 6" Range Command " transmission features six powershift gears in three ranges Or choose the new 23 x 12 Dual Command " transmission

COMFORT. Exceptional visibility front to rear plenty of legroom, easy-to-reach controls, two doors, comfortable seat and quiet interior

TRACTORS THAT TAKE HARD WORK SERIOUSLY

New Holland 35 Series tractors really pull their weight in the field

- 4-cylinder, New Holland engines have good lugging capacity, and produce very little smoke or noise
- The high-capacity, 14 5 gpm hydraulic flow assures dependable operation
- 3-point lift system, activated by a touch control, is best in class
- Electro-hydraulic differential lock provides maximum traction when needed

TOUGH

Need to handle the toughest jobs? Check out the Model L465 New Holland Super Boom " skid-steer loader The "L465" is built tough to give you superior performance and durability

The "L465' has a 30-horse-power, diesel engine and a 1,250-pound SAE operating load It has a Pick Up 'n Go " universal attachment system so it's compatible with New Holland or competitive attach-ments And, you can get to routine service points with the boom down
